DAYTON HONORS THE WRIGHTS

Pays Tribute to Her Most Distinguished Sons.

NOTHING SERIOUS ON DAY'S PROGRAM

Aim of Citizenship Appears To Be To Make Noise.

Whistles Relieve Each Other in Noisy Salutes—Short Program at Public Parks—Several Speeches Made—Parade in Which the Famous Navigators of the Air Are the Central Figures.

Dayton, O., June 17.—This is Wright day in Dayton, and while the prominent citizens are busy shaking hands and pinning badges on distinguished out-of-town visitors as they arrive, the common people are firing guns, pounding anvils, shooting firecrackers, blowing whistles and straining their voices.

Some of the veterans from the National Military home said they would take oath that they hadn't heard so much noise all in a bunch since the battle of Bull Run

As far as the noise end of the celebration in honor of Wilbur and Orville Wright goes, it was all planned with malice aforethought by members of the committee who are directing the job of letting the "kings of the air" know that they are appreciated by their fellow townsmen. Several days ago they arranged with all the factories to blow their whistles according to schedule. Under this arrangement, as soon as the boilers in a dozen or so factories got tired and worn out, another dozen took up the burden.

It was feared in some quarters that the Society for the Suppression of Unnecessary Noises might get busy before the day was over and implore a quieter and saner celebration, but when it came to a show down, most of the members were too hoarse to discuss the question, and those who had the use of their voices had stayed up so late Wednesday walking the street and watching the illuminations that they didn't care what happened.

No Serious Features.

The impressive thing about today's program was that it contained no serious features. It opened with noises of all sizes and descriptions, and will close with a big display of fireworks along the Miami river Sandwiched between these extremes were three speeches, none of them over five minutes in length, in Van Cleve park, this morning, and a review of the federal and state troops and an exhibition parade by the fire department scheduled for late this afternoon. All this took well with the great throngs that were looking for the spectacular, and were willing to take for granted any tender sentiments that the orators might have intended to express.

Escorted by a big reception committee, Wilbur and Orville Wright rode to Van Cleve park this morning in an automobile that had to force its way through jams of humanity that blocked the downtown streets. Squads of policemen walked on either side of the machine holding the crowds back and restraining an occasional overenthusiastic individual from boarding the automobile to shake hands with the brothers Imbued with the happy-go-lucky air that is characterizing the celebration, the crowds all along the way cheered and blew horns.

Ceremonies Opened.

At the park, old Jonathan Dayton opened the ceremonies. Jonathan Dayton is the man who founded Dayton in 1796. He has been dead so long that the oldest living resident doesn't have even a hazy recollection of him, but in this morning's program, one of the committee was togged out in a suit of clothes of the style of Jonathan's day and he tried hard to look like the pictures of the founder of this city. He was accompanied by an escort of continental soldiers, heralds, members of the city council, board of education, city officials and members of the Wright brothers' home celebration committee. Jonathan said something about letting joy reign supreme and letting mirth be unconfined.

All the remarks at the park were directed toward Wilbur and Orville Wright. Ezra M. Kuhns, president of the city council, greeted them first. He told them they were "Dayton's two most distinguished sons," they had conquered space and have discovered the secret of the bird so that any man in the not distant future may hope to utilize and enjoy a hitherto unexplored field of operation.

Proud of Them.

President Leopold Rauh, of the Dayton chamber of commerce, tried to impress on the brothers how proud the city of Dayton is to claim them as favorite sons. "We admire you for your accomplishments," he said, "but especially so for the extreme modesty and true American spirit evinced by you."

Conrad J. Schmidt told of the days when both Wilbur and Orville were pupils in the Dayton schools.

Wilbur Wright last night presided at a dinner of the club of ten boys, which was organized by him and his brothers, Reuchlin and Lorin, twenty-three years ago and of which he is now president At the time of organization, Orville Wright was under the age limit for membership. Nine of the ten charter members are still in the club. They meet at least once a year. All were present last night, W. E. Landis coming from Columbus, F J. Gilbert from New York, and Reuchlin Wright from Tonganoxie, Kansas.

Baron Takahira, the Japanese ambassador, will arrive in Dayton at 10 o'clock tonight to represent Japan in the celebration.

10,000 Visitors Present.

At noon there were possibly 10,000 visitors participating in the celebration. The heavy down pour of rain early in the day and the dark skies and occasional showers up until noon had much to do in keeping people away. As it was, however,

GUTTED BY FIRE AT EARLY HOUR

Memorial Hall at Newark Suffers Early Today.

RECENTLY BOUGHT AT COST OF $150,000

Today Is the Big Day of the Encampment.

The Parade This Afternoon Being the Crowning Feature — The Parade Is Reviewed by Governor Harmon and Staff—All the State G. A. R. Services Being Held in High School Building.

Newark, O., June 17.—Fire, caused either by defective wiring or a match thrown into a pile of paper, gutted the Memorial hall here early this morning.

The hall was the headquarters for the state encampment of the Ohio department of the G. A. R., but all records were gotten out without damage.

All the G. A. R. services scheduled to be held in the damaged building have been transferred to the high school auditorium.

The state commander's reception was held in the hall last night, 350 school children forming the American flag on the stage The fire was probably smouldering at that time, although the blaze was not discovered until 1:30 this morning. The building was purchased by the county a few days ago, at a cost of $150,000. The loss will be about $20,000.

This was the big day of the encampment, the parade this afternoon being the crowning feature The parade was reviewed by Governor Harmon and staff.

MRS. JULIA HOWE HONORED TODAY

Made a Doctor of Letters by Boston University.

Providence, R. I., June 17.—Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, philanthropist and author, is today a doctor of letters of Boston university. Mrs. Ward was given her degree at the commencement exercises, yesterday, and impressive ceremonies marked the conferring of the honor on the nonogenrian author.

In introducing Mrs. Howe, President Faunce said:

"Doctor of letters, Julia Ward Howe, of Boston, author, philanthropist, mother, friend of the slave, the prisoner, and all who suffer, singer of the 'Battle Hymn of the Republic.'"

While Mrs. Howe approached the platform, the band played the Battle Hymn of the Republic.

TAFT-ALDRICH PROPOSITION

To Place Tax on Net Income of Corporations

IS MEETING WITH MUCH OPPOSITION

Small Corporations Will Probably Be Excepted.

It Is Pointed Out That a Two Per Cent. Tax on the Incomes of Some Corporations Will Work a Great Hardships to the Small Stockholder and Not Affect the Large—Several Remedies To Be Offered.

Washington, June 17.—Considerable opposition is already being manifested in the senate to the Taft-Aldrich propositions to put a tax of two per cent. on the net income of all corporations.

As a result, it is quite possible that, when the amendment is finally reported from the finance committee, it will contain provisions which will exempt from taxation the incomes of corporations which do not exceed a certain figure, and may also exclude from the operations of the law the incomes derived from corporations, or individuals which do not exceed a certain amount.

In other words, an effort is to be made to protect the small stockholder, and throw the burden of the proposed two per cent tax, small as it is, upon wealth.

One of the first objections that have been raised to the plan proposed by Senator Aldrich and endorsed by President Taft, is that, whereas the direct income tax proposition was limited to those persons who have incomes in excess of $5,000 a year, the pending suggestion would affect everybody who had even the smallest kind of an interest in a corporation or a joint stock company of any kind.

Many Small Stockholders.

Railroads, for example, not only in the East, but in the West, count among their stockholders thousands of people in very moderate circumstances, who are usually dependent upon the dividends accruing from their stockholdings in these railroads. It is claimed that many widows and orphans dependent upon stock legacies of corporations, would find their incomes materially reduced on account of the amount which the federal government would take of the net earnings of the corporations whose stocks are held in trust for such widows and orphans, or for the benefit of charitable institutions, a large part of whose income is derived from dividends upon corporation stock.

According to figures obtained today from the Interstate Commerce commission, the net earnings of the railroads of the country for the nine months of the present fiscal year ended March 31, aggregated more than $530,000,000, which makes an average of about $50,000,000 a month. Should the same rate be maintained, the grand total would approximate $700,000,000 upon which two per cent. tax would yield $14,000,000 or more than half of the amount which the president estimates should be collected from all of the corporations of the country.

Senators Borah and Bristow, two of the most ardent Republican supporters of a direct income tax, joined today in a statement as to the effect of the proposed tax on corporations, as follows:

Not a Perfect Plan.

"A tax upon the net incomes of corporations alone will very imperfectly reach the desired result. It will tax tens of thousands of stockholders, whose total incomes are very small, and will exempt in large measure the immense personal incomes of the country.

"There is no reason for exempting from taxation the vast incomes of individuals like Carnegie, Rockefeller, and others, a very large part of whose fortunes do not consist of corporation stocks. It is also well known that corporations, especially the larger ones, can, in most instances, shift the burden of the tax of the public, by imposing upon the people increased charges and prices."

It is certain that the plan to be proposed by the finance committee does not contain exemptions to cover the case of small corporations and joint stock companies, amendments will be offered on the floor by sena-

RUN UNCLOTHED TO THE STREET

Panic Seizes Occupants of a Tenement-House,

WHEN FIRE FOLLOWS GASOLINE EXPLOSION

Lives of More Than 100 Persons Are Endangered.

One Crazed Mother Hurls Her Babe from Fourth-Story Window and Then Leaps After It—Babe Is Caught by a Brawny Drayman and Policemen and Firemen Break Force of Her Fall.

Cincinnati, O., June 17.—More than 700 Hungarians, men, women and children, living in an old five-story river front tenement, fought in mad panic for their lives at 5:30 o'clock this morning, when a gasoline explosion on the second floor instantly set the rookery on fire.

Fifteen men and women were overcome by smoke before they could grope their way through the dark, narrow hallway. Some ran absolutely unclothed to the street.

An eighteen-months-old baby was hurled from a fourth-story window by its fear-crazed mother as flames roared behind her, and the baby's life was saved by a brawny drayman, who caught the falling body in his arms. Then the mother leaped from the same window and massed policemen and firemen, without time to get fire nets, caught her body and she was but slightly hurt.

Firemen on high ladders battled with men so fear-crazed they would have hurled their rescuers to death had not hard blows beaten them down. Even women had to be knocked senseless. Only the bravery and absolute discipline of the firemen and police prevented a holocaust. Ten persons were slightly burned. No one received fatal injury. The building was destroyed.

Who Got the Collar?

Paris, June 17 —The court of cassation ordered the Princess De Sagan, formerly Miss Anna Gould, and Count Boni De Castellane, her divorced husband, to pay the $20,000 claim which a local jeweler presented for a collar of pearls which Boni bought, declaring it was for the princess, then his wife, but which she swore she never received.

Strange Freak of the Sea.

Toulon, June 17.—For several hours today the sea was fully three feet below normal, the phenomena probably resulting from an earthquake. A slight quake was felt here at an early hour today but it is not believed to have been severe enough to have caused the sea's shrinkage.

DIRECT APPEAL TO THE PEOPLE

To Root Out the Malefactors of Great Wealth

COMES FROM WILDS OF DARK CONTINENT

It Is Regarded as Suggestion to His Successor.

Would Have the Fight Against Crooked Business Continued Even If Business Is Hurt by Stern Exposure of Crookedness and the Result of Efforts To Punish Those Who Prove To Be Crooked.

New York, June 17.—From the wilds of far off Africa, ex-President Roosevelt has sent another appeal to the American people, "to wrest the control of the government out of the hands of rich men who use it for unhealthy purposes."

Under the caption, "The Thralldom of Names," Mr Roosevelt in the current Outlook, with customary vigor, of the necessity of continuing the fight against crooked business and declares that "if business is hurt by the stern exposure of crookedness and the result of efforts to punish the crooked men, then business must be hurt, even though good men are involved in the hurting."

The article will undoubtedly be regarded by many as a suggestion from the ex-president to his successor in office, though it reads throughout as a direct appeal to the American people.

In part, Mr Roosevelt says:

It behooves our people never to fall under the thralldom of names, and, least of all, to be misled by designing people who appeal to the reverence for or antipath toward a given name in order to achieve some alien purpose. Of course, such misuse of names is as old as the history of what we understand when we speak of civilized mankind. The rule of a mob may be every whit as tyrannical and oppressive as the rule of a single individual, whether or not called a dictator, and the rule of an oligarchy is a plutocracy or a bureaucracy, or any other small set of powerful men, may in its turn be just as sordid and just as bloodthirsty as that of a mob.

First and foremost, we must stand firmly on a basis of good sound ethics. We intend to do what is right for the ample and sufficient reason that it is right. If business is hurt by the stern exposure of crookedness and the result of efforts to punish the crooked man, then business must be hurt, even though good men are involved in the hurting, until it so adjusts itself that it is possible to prosecute wrongdoing without stampeding the business community into a terror-struck defense of the wrongdoers and an angry assault upon those who have exposed them.

Must Not Be Misled.

On the other hand, we must beware above all things of being misled by wicked or foolish men who would condone homicide and violence, and apologize for the dynamiter and the assassin because, forsooth, they choose to take the ground that crime is no crime if the wicked man happens also to have been a shiftless and unthrifty or lazy man who has never amassed property. It is essential that we should wrest the control of the government out of the hands of rich men who use it for unhealthy purposes and should keep it out of their hands; and to this end the first requisite is to provide means adequately to deal with corporations, which are essential to modern business, but which, under the decisions of the courts, and because of the shortsightedness of the public, have become the chief factors in political and business debasement.

The sinister and adroit reactionary, the sinister and violent radical, are alike in this, that each works in the end for the destruction of the cause that he professedly champions. If the one is left to his own devices, he will utterly discredit the entire system of government by individual initiative; and if the other is allowed to work his will, he, in his turn, will make men so loathe interference and control by the state that any abuses connected with the untrammeled control of all business by private and individuals will seem small by comparison.

Unscrupulous Big Man.

Moreover, where there is absolute lawlessness, absolute failure by the state to control or supervise these great corporations, the inevitable result is to favor, among these very able men of business, the man who is unscrupulous and cunning. The unscrupulous big man who gets complete control of a given forest tract, or of a network or railways which alone give access to a certain region, or who, in combination with his fellows, acquires control of a certain industry, may crush out, in the great mass of citizens affected, all individual initiative quite as much as it would be crushed out by state control. The very reason why we object to state ownership, that it puts a stop to individual initative and to the healthy development of perpetual responsibility, is the reason why we object to an unsupervised, unchecked monopolistic control in private hands. We urge control and supervision by the nation as an antidote to the movement for state socialism. Those who advocate total lack of regulation, those who advocate lawlessness in the business world, themselves give the strongest impulse to what I believe would be the deadening movement towards state socialism.

There must be law to control the big men, and therefore, especially the big corporations in the industrial world, in the interest of our industrial democracy of today. This law must be efficient, and therefore, it must be administered by executive officers, and not by law suits in the courts.

Must Take All Classes.

Yet another thing. No movement ever has done or ever will do good in this country where assault is made, not upon evil wherever found, but simply upon evil as it happens to be found in a particular class. The big newspaper, owned or controlled in Wall street, which is everlastingly preaching about the iniquity of laboring men, which is quite willing to hound politicians for their misdeeds, but which with raving fury defends all the malefactors of great wealth, stands on an exact level with, and neither above nor below, that other newspaper whose whole attack is upon men of wealth, which declines to condemn, or else condemns in apologetic, perfunctory, and wholly inefficient manner, outrages committed by labor. This is the kind of paper which by torrents of foul abuse seeks to stir up a bitter class hatred against every man of means simply because he is a man of means, against every man of wealth, whether he is an honest man, who by industry and ability has honorably won his wealth and who honorably spends it, or a man whose wealth represents robbery and whose life represents either profligacy, or, at best, an inane, useless or lastless extravagance. We must draw the line, not on wealth, nor on poverty, but on conduct. We must stand for the good citizen because he is a good citizen, who her he be rich or whether he be poor, and we must mercilessly attack the man who does evil, wholly without regard to whether the evil is in done high or low places, whether it takes the form of homicidal violence among members of a federation of miners, or of unscrupulous craft and greed in the head of some great Wall street corporation.—Copyrighted by the Outlook Company.

BY MUCH POMP AND CEREMONY

Meeting of Czar and Kaiser Is Attended.

CONFERENCE HELD ON HOHENZOLLERN

Rulers Are Accompanied by Chief Advisers.

It Is Said To Be the Aim of the Kaiser To Make Germany Supreme in the Affairs of Europe, and the Indications Are Strong That the Place Now Held by Great Britain Will Go to Her.

St. Petersburg, June 17.—Czar Nicholas and Emperor William met today in the gulf of Finland aboard the German imperial yacht, Hohenzollern. The meeting between the two rulers, which it is expected will have great bearing on future European politics, was attended by much pomp and ceremony, and was far from the mere "friendly visit" indicated in preliminary reports.

As proof that politics will furnish the chief topic of discussion is the fact that the Czar is accompanied by Premier Stolypin, Minister of Foreign Affairs Iswolsky, Count Pourtales, the German ambassador to Russia, and the German military and naval attaches, while Foreign Minister Von Schoen and other close advisors of the Kaiser are in the latter's suite.

The meeting took place in Pitkipas bay, a small inlet on the southern coast of Finland, about sixty miles from St. Petersburg. Both of the royal yachts were under an escort of warships and as the two squadrons approached salutes in honor of the rulers were fired.

The Czar embarked in a small launch and sped across the bay to the Hohenzollern on the deck of which the Kaiser stood ready to embrace him.

It is uncertain how long the rulers will be together, though the visit is scheduled to last until Saturday. There will be two great state banquets, one aboard each of the imperial yachts.

Arranged by Kaiser.

Though the Kaiser is visiting Russian waters on the invitation of the Czar, today's meeting was really proposed by the Czar, who is desirous of restoring the former friendly relations between Russia and Germany, relations which, for a time, seemed endangered as a result of Germany's coup in the recent Balkan dispute, when she forced Russia to accept the German-Austrian program.

The meeting with the Czar is but one link in the chain of efforts the Kaiser is making to establish an absolute supremacy of Germany in Europe. Germany regards with deepest suspicion the new tripartite entente between England, Russia and France, and recent acts of hers have given rise to the suspicion that the Kaiser is seeking to alienate both Russia and France from this union and attach them to Germany's own constellation of powers.

In short, Germany, in the opinion of leading Russian diplomats, is seeking to substitute her own supremacy for the present dominance of England.

That overtures to this end will be made in the meeting now in progress between the two rulers, no one denies. The situation is not altogether pleasing to Russia, who would like to maintain the friendliest relations with England, but who, through stress of national weaknesses, is forced to throw her support to whatever power seems most likely of gaining the ascendancy. And this power today appears to be Germany.

Fires on English Boat.

St. Petersburg, June 17.—A Russian torpedo boat, one of the flotilla acting as escort for the imperial yacht Standart, on which the Czar made the trip to the gulf of Finland, fired on the British steamship Northburg, Captain Robertson, for approaching too close to Pitkipas bay, where the Czar and Kaiser are exchanging visits.

The Northburg was fired upon after the Russian boat had hailed her and warned her not to approach any nearer. The shell from the torpedo boat struck one of the steam pipes of the Northburg, and an English sailor was injured.

The news of the affair, which is being rigidly censored, has occasioned much excitement throughout the capital, where it is feared the facts may be such as to bring on the most serious international complications.

MRS. MARY P. M'GRATH GETS THE TAX REMITTED

Is Granted Relief by the State Board.

A Widow Owns Building in Which Liquor Is Alleged To Have Been Sold Illegally—It Is Without Her Knowledge or Consent.

The state board of tax remission, late Tuesday afternoon, remitted taxes assessed against Mrs. Mary P. McGrath, a widow of this city, in the sum of $553.85.

Mrs. McGrath owns the building formerly occupied by Hal Barrick's saloon on north Main street. After the local-option election went into effect, inspectors from the state dairy and food commissioner's office claimed to have found liquor in Barrick's place of business and ordered Auditor Charles L. Allen to place his name on the tax duplicate for the amount of the Aikin tax. The law provides that the owner of the real estate is liable for the tax in the event the renter has not sufficient personal property to pay it. In Barrick's case, it developed that Mrs. McGrath, the owner of the building, was responsible. To escape paying the tax, Mrs. McGrath appealed to the state board of tax remission. She declared that if liquor had been sold by Barrick, he had done so without her knowledge, and after carefully considering the matter the members of the state board decided to remit the tax.

George Greeno, who was caught in the same manner by state inspectors and placed on the duplicate for $500 Aikin tax and $100 penalty, is now the defendant in the common pleas court in an action brought to collect both tax and penalty assessed against his property.

TAKES TROUBLE TO EMPEROR

Jap Editor Says His Rights Are Trampled Upon.

OFFICE IS RAIDED BY THE SHERIFF

Charge of Conspiracy To Incite a Riot Made.

M. Negoro, Arrested on Indictment Charging Conspiracy To Prevent the Operation of the Hawaiian Sugar Plantations, Attempts To Make an International Episode Out of the Event.

Honolulu, June 15.—An international turn was given to the situation growing out of the indictment by the grand jury of the 17 leaders in the strike of the Japanese plantation laborers, when M Kogoro of the editorial staff of the Jiji, a local Japanese paper, made complaint to the foreign office at Tokyo to the effect that his treaty rights were violated when his office was raided by the authorities.

The alleged violation of his rights as a Japanese subject, guaranteed under the treaty between the United States and Japan, he sets forth in his complaint, consists in the search of his office and the seizure of his private papers and documents by the territorial authorities without due process of law.

Sheriff Admits Charges.

Territorial Sheriff William Henry admits that the search and seizure was made by force of arms and without search warrants or process of law, but claims that the papers seized contained evidence of criminal purpose, and that the courts of the territory are open to Negoro for redress if he has been damaged.

Negoro was rearrested together with Y. Sogo, Y. Tasaka and K. Kawamura of the editorial staffs of the Nippu and the Jiji, upon indictments returned by the grand jury charging them with conspiring by indirect, sinister and unlawful methods and means of intimidation, inciting to riot and threatened violence to prevent and hinder the Honolulu Oahu Ewa, Waialua and Kahuku plantations from carrying on their business.

FAMOUS WOMEN ARE IN SESSION

Leaders in Many Fields at the Toronto Convention.

Toronto, June 15—More than 7,000,000 women, living in all parts of the world, are represented at the fourth quinquennial meeting of the International Council of Women, which began its sessions in this city today. The council will remain in session two weeks, during which time it will listen to addresses by some of the ablest of the world's women.

The purpose of the International Council of Women is the provision of a means of communication between organizations of women in all countries; also to provide opportunities for the intercommunication of views on questions affecting the welfare of the individual and the community. The council owes its existence to the initiative of two American women,

FIFTEEN JAPS ARE INDICTED

Held for Attempt To Incite Plot in Hawaii.

Honolulu, June 14.—Fifteen of the Japanese strike leaders under arrest were given a preliminary hearing. District Judge W. L. Whitney held 12 of them for trial on charges of conspiring to riot and three for conspiracy to murder.

When the territorial district court convened in extraordinary session for the preliminary examination of the strike leaders, Sheriff Jarrett, with the approval of Judge A. J. Robinson, ordered that no crowds be allowed to assemble about the courthouse during the hearing, on the ground that it was likely to lead to disorder. This order was rigidly enforced by a large detail of police

The authorities declare the evidence adduced before the grand jury and the papers obtained in the Japanese Higher Wage association raid furnish abundant grounds for the belief that the strikers were beginning to resort to intimidation and violence in their effort to control the sugar industry and eventually the internal affairs of the territory.

Soichi Uhenho, Japanese consul general, has advised his countrymen against the men who led the strike movement. He expressed approval of their arrest and prosecution.

BLOOD FLOWS IN VILLAGE STREET

Two Dead and Five Wounded in Mississippi

AS RESULT OF POLITICAL FEUD

Feeling Running High as Result of Affair.

State Troops Are Rushed from Brookhaven to Meadville To Guard Against the Possibility of Rioting—One of Men Killed Tried a Few Weeks Ago for Murder and Is Acquitted.

Meadville, Miss., June 15. — Two men are dead, two were perhaps fatally wounded and three others slightly injured, due to a bloody street battle waged by parties to a bitter feud that had been previously marked with tragedy. As a result of the affair feeling here runs high, and state troops were rushed to Meadville from Brookhaven to guard against the possibility of rioting.

Those killed were: Dr. A. M. Newman, clerk of the chancery court of Franklin county, and Silas G. Reynolds. Dr. Lenox Newman, a son of one of the slain men, is believed to have been fatally injured, and Herbert Applewhite, an attorney, may not recover as the result of his wounds. Emmett Newman, brother of Lenox, was shot in the leg. Two men, named Boyd and Parr, alleged to have been involved in the affray, were slightly wounded, but escaped.

L. P. Prichard, a brother of Cornelius Prichard, whom Dr. Newman killed seven weeks ago, was arrested and charged with complicity in the tragedy.

The killing of Prichard by Newman was the first bloodshed to mark a feud that had existed between the two men, relatives and friends for months. This bitter factionalism had its inception in the political campaign in which Newman and Prichard were opposing candidates. Newman was tried a few weeks ago for Prichard's murder and was acquitted. This served to arouse even more bitter feeling.

J. J. HILL PLANS $1,300,000,000 MERGER OF ALL HIS RAILROADS

It is announced in financial circles that James J. Hill has found a way to merge his railway lines in one corporation within the requirements of the federal laws. The western financier has been at work upon such a scheme ever since the dissolution of the Northern Securities company. Since his purchase of the Colorado & Southern railway, which has a very broad and liberal charter, it is said that he has determined to turn all his properties over to that road as a holding company. This would comprise the greatest railroad corporation in the country's history. Northern Pacific has a capital stock of $321,000,000 and a bonded debt of $190,000,000. Great Northern has a capital stock of $269,000,000 and a bonded debt of $183,000,000. Colorado & Southern has outstanding $8,500,000 first preferred, the same amount of second preferred and $31,000,000 of common stock. It has a bonded debt and has guarantees of $56,000,000. This would give the merger a capital and bonded debt approximately of $1,300,000,000. This picture of Mr. Hill was taken at the opening of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific fair.

Fred Sabata, former employe of the mine is under arrest here pending an investigation. The bandits entered the bunk-house without making any attempt to move quietly and turned on the light. After taking all the high-grade ore in sight, they fled

"SMELTER KING" IN DIVORCE TANGLE IN CHICAGO COURT

Chicago experienced a shock when former Mayor Dunne went into Judge Honore's court there recently and demanded that a divorce granted in 1901 to Grace B. Guggenheim from William Guggenheim, one of the family of "smelter kings," be set aside. Judge Dunne declared that he had granted the divorce when he was on the bench, but that the decree had been obtained by fraud and collusion and should be set aside. He produced affidavits purporting to show that Grace B. Guggenheim was not a legal resident of Chicago when the divorce was granted to her She now appears as plaintiff in the motion to annul the decree.

A GREAT CHURCH CONVENTION IS ON

Representatives of 25,000,000 Are in Session.

New York, June 15. — One of the most important religious gatherings of recent years in the number of persons represented is that of the world's Presbyterian alliance, which began in this city today. In it are represented five continents, 99 separate denominations and nearly 25,000,000 members. The meeting is known officially as the ninth quinquennial council of the Alliance of the Reformed Churches Throughout the World Holding the Presbyterian System. To facilitate matters the alliance is generally referred to as the Pan-Presbyterian alliance.

The meeting will last 10 days, during which subjects of great moment to the Protestant world will be discussed. Addresses have been announced upon "The Pre-existence of Christ," "Our Lord's Virgin Birth," "Our Lord's Resurrection," "The Newer Phases of Evolution," "The Newer Phases of Theological Training," "The Recent Testimony of Archaeology to the Scriptures," and on many other similar theological questions. In addition the attitude of the churches represented on marriage and divorce, temperance, church union and other questions of the day will be discussed.

England, Scotland, France, Italy, Arabia, Canada and other countries have sent delegates to the convention, as well as the United States. The theologians assembled here are numbered among the leading exponents of Protestant thought in their respective countries, and their views will be read with interest throughout the world. Additional interest is lent to this Presbyterian convention by the fact that this year marks the five hundredth anniversary of the birth of John Calvin, who is looked upon by Presbyterians as the founder of their church. Two days of the convention are to be devoted to addresses upon the life and works of Calvin.

SEBASTIAN LIMA IS TAKEN INTO CUSTODY

United States Marshals and Police Make Capture.

HOUSE SURROUNDED UNTIL MAN APPEARS

Lima Is Charged with Complicity in the Black Hand Outrages of the Country—Herman Kalkbrenner Is Given a Hearing by the Mayor. Notes of Local Police Court.

Sebastian Lima, a brother-in-law of Salvatore Lima, now under arrest on a charge of using the mails to defraud and alleged leader of the Black Hand society of Ohio, was arrested here, Monday night, about 10 o'clock. Early in the evening, Deputy United States Marshals Owens and Wagner came down from Toledo and, accompanied by Chief Cornwell and Officers Bell and Cusic, went to the Lima place to arrest Sebastian Lima.

On the arrival of the officers, they were informed by Salvatore Lima that his brother-in-law was out. The officers searched the place and put a guard around the store to see that no word was sent from the place or that Sebastian did not escape. One of the women made an effort to get away from the store to warn Sebastian not to return, but she was captured and returned to the place The guard remained until 11 o'clock, when Sebastian Lima made his appearance and was taken in charge by the officers He was taken to the city prison and, next morning, Deputies Owens and Wagner left for Toledo with the prisoner. It is believed that Sebastian Lima is implicated in the Black Hand dealings. Salvatore Lima was given a hearing, Tuesday, and left for Toledo that morning. The officers were assisted in the arrest by Inspector Hosford, who accompanied the United States marshals to this city.

The Black Hand society is becoming more active at Cincinnati. Herman Breiner, a fruit dealer in that city, received a letter Monday telling him he would be blown up with a bomb unless he mails $500 to "Z. Y. M., general delivery, Newport, Kentucky."

ALSO RAISES THE AMICON TRIBUTE

Inspectors Urged To Drop the Prosecutions.

If They Continue To Move Against the Alleged Leaders of the Ohio Branch of the Society of the Banana They Are Threatened with a Horrible Fate—Postal Authorities Propose Cumulative Sentences.

Columbus, O., June 15. — Black Hand letters threatening him with death unless he drops the prosecution of the 11 alleged members of the Society of the Banana arrested in various Ohio cities last week, have been received by Postal Inspector Oldfield. The letters were decorated with representations of stilettos and other arms similar to those seized by the inspectors on their raids last week. Inspector Hosford is said to have received similar letters.

It also developed that John Amicon, the Columbus commission man, efforts to blackmail whom resulted in the present successful movement against the Black Hand, had received a new letter within the last week in which demand was made for $25,000. The inspectors have the letter in their possession. Today the inspectors are in Toledo, where the hearing of Sam Lima, the alleged leader of the gang, arrested at Marion, is scheduled to take place.

The postal inspectors may seek to have the courts impose cumulative sentences. It is said the letters seized in the Amicon cases would make possible seven sentences. The maximum single sentence fixed by law is 18 months. If made cumulative the sentences could be seven times that period.

The fact that Ambassadors Reid, White and Hill have respectively notified the English, French and German governments that an American syndicate expects to participate in the new Chinese railway loan is regarded as a significant development of President Taft's policy to make the United States an influential factor in Oriental affairs. The loan for the Hankow-Szechuen railway amounts to $27,500,000, and the American syndicate which hopes to participate in it is headed by J. P. Morgan. It has been reported at Washington that William D. Straight, consul general at Mukden, will investigate the loan for the American investors.

MEMORIAL SERVICES AT BAPTIST CHURCH

Odd Fellows and Rebekahs Pay Tribute to Departed.

REV. J. P. CURRIN DELIVERS ADDRESS

The Church Is Crowded by Members of the Orders—Speaker's Subject Is "The Middle Link"—Talks of What the Secret Order Stands for in the World.

The annual memorial exercises of Kosciusko Lodge, No. 58, I. O. O. F., were held at the First Baptist church, Sunday morning. Rev. J. P. Currin, the pastor, delivered an address. His subject was "The Middle Link."

The church was crowded by Odd Fellows and Rebekahs. A program of special music was rendered.

Rev. Mr. Currin found his text in First Corinthians 13:13—"And now abideth faith, hope and love, these three; but the greatest of these is love."

The speaker began with a tribute to the dead members.

"These three links, masks of great stations in the highway of life, truth, love and friendship, are vocal voices, uttered of the stations, the starts and the stops. These, our friends, are giving but this great truth, in the dramatic thought. They are stretching out to the end from truth to friendship. The idea of love between truth and friendship is the opening up of the great truth that is the sum total of life.

"Life begins and life ends. Think of these names that we have listened to Since the beginning of this organization, they began, started, ended. Buttoned up in this idea are great opportunities, privileges. Grasp the truth, reach out and take hold of this great humanity. What hospitality do we not find between the start and the stop between Jerusalem and Jericho, between the upper Jerusalem and this lower Jericho of life. Between these stations we see the life and death. That is what we see in the flower. On all sides motherly care and brotherly altruistic feeling.

"One may leave the train at Santa Fe and travel one hundred and sixty miles into Death valley. It is away from life, but between the starts and stops what surprises meet the traveler. Perhaps he may meet robbers at any turn. Here is a little cross to mark the grave of a stage driver. The surprise met him, the surprise of stealth. One thinks of the eye of joy, the hand grasp of health, the surprise of death and He says, 'Come,' and we are here to do Him honor. 'O, for the touch of a vanished hand, and the sound of a voice that is still.' Today you are well, tomorrow the struggles of life will be upon you. May God help us and warn our souls that we ought to be on our guard for these stealthy approaches.

"While on the road from Jerusalem to Jericho he was beset, bereft of support, the representative people of the Jewish theocracy seizing him and stripping him, leaving him half dead, wounded. In a little while you see the Samaritan; surely he will pass by on the other side, but no, he got down from his beast. In the lesson of Barnabas, he was chief of the robber band. Even in addition to the strand of compassion he said, 'I am going to fellowship with him.' Between the starts and stops stand the muscle and sinew, then compassion and fellowship. What a beautiful service that mother Hannah fulfilled. That song transfusing to the life, soul, how she served in the temple, made the coat for her child, the prophet, the leader of Israel's people. The climax, truth, is being befriended by sympathies.

"The great Henry Ward Beecher once stopped a ragged newsboy and after purchasing a paper told him that he need not give back the change. Upon asking the boy if he were cold the child answered, 'I was cold until you spoke to me, now I am warm.'

"The speaker said that while in Springfield once he had occasion to visit that beautiful building, the Odd Fellows' home. He spoke of it as an illustration of the worth of a home like it and the help to those who need sympathy. It was the suggestion of men that made it possible.

"These eliomosonary institutions, these great things are the result of befriending sympathies," he declared "O my friend, may you be willing to make the service, the sacrifice. That great Wendell Phillips while crossing the Boston common was once stopped by a little girl who asked for alms. Seeing that her voice rang true, he gave her a bill. After she had passed up the rickety stairway to her mother, she was asked if she knew who the man was. She answered that she knew only that he had a silver voice. She was afterwards sent to a conservatory of music and became one of the great singers. At Fremont temple, her attention being attracted, she said, O, it is the silver voice. It was Wendell Phillips, the great orator, that international man. Because of the service of sacrifice, the great linked truth, she was enabled to rise and sing like a lark. Open your hearts and let the sunshine in. And the greatest of these is love because we see between the stations, the starts and stops of this organized life and it is possible that the sun of transient love can come down and make our hearts to rejoice."

A new automatic rapid fire gun recently tested at Cleveland, Ohio, and soon to have a further test by ordnance experts of the government, promises to revolutionize light field artillery. The weapon is known as the McClean-Lissak automatic gun and is made in three sizes—three-pounder, firing solid shot or bursting shell, 100 shots a minute, with a range of three and a half miles; one pounder, firing similar projectiles, 150 a minute, with a range of three miles, and 30-caliber, firing 350 shots a minute, with a range of two miles. The smaller and larger types of the gun are shown in the accompanying illustration. The three-pounder, the largest automatic gun ever made, is mounted on an automobile truck. There is no recoil from the gun even when the brakes of the automobile are off. The smaller gun is mounted on a tripod and can be fired at an elevation of seventy-five degrees, making it effective against war balloons at an altitude of two miles. The smaller gun weighs only forty pounds. The new gun is the invention of Dr. S. N. McClean, of Cleveland, Ohio. The inventor is indicated by an arrow among the group of men around the large gun. The man sighting the smaller rifle is Lieutenant Colonel O. M. Lissak, of the ordnance department, U. S. A.

TIME WHEN MEN WILL LIVE 120 YEARS NEAR

That's the View Held by Professor Metshnikoff.

INSISTS THAT CANCER COMES FROM WITHOUT

Terrorism Is Worn Out, Experiments Going To Show That Such Is the Case—Little Spider Is Found in the First Swelling of a Patient at Pasteur Institute.

Professor Metchnikoff of the Pasteur Institute, Paris, is in St. Petersburg visiting his wife's relatives and studying the records of the capital's long cholera visitation. There have been no new causes in two weeks, but Metchnikoff warns the public that the germs in the long stricken district will be retained for weeks. After comparing the politeness and consideration he has received here with his reception in Paris, he says he has watched Russian politics keenly in Paris, where he is intimate with the members of the Russian colony. What he has seen here confirms his conviction that the insurrectionary movement has spent itself. He finds the space which the advanced papers used to give to political agitation is now chiefly devoted to inculcating a species of religious philosophy, which he thinks fails to touch the lives of the plain people. He says, "They weep, and they forget."

Professor Metchnikoff mentions as the chief of the recent achievements at the Pasteur institute Dr. Boret's discovery in his cancer research of a little spider which had its nest in a sufferer's first swelling confirming the idea that cancer comes from the outside. Professor Metchnikoff is thoroughly convinced that mankind will come to regard 120 years as the approximate natural limit of old age, and also that man's years of working capacity will be greatly extended. He says the experiments on the large intestine and amputations by Dr. Lane, an Englishman, furnish important scientific preparation for this consummation.

The Czar has issued a ukase ordering instructions in drill and gymnastics in all the schools of Russia. The instructors will be non-commissioned officers of the reserve, who will receive an additional salary from the Educational department. The Holy Synod is to furnish the funds from church revenues.

The czar will be the central figure in the magnificent patriotic military pageant at Poltava, in celebration of the defeat of Charles XII. of Sweden on July 8, 1709. The scenic spectacle will be prepared by Mazwiofsky, the battle painter, and Mouravieff, the military historian. The battle will be enacted as it was fought 200 years ago, part of the Russian forces representing the Swedes. The climax the regimental chiefs laying the Swedish standards at the feet of Peter the Great, will be taken from Kotchuber's picture. Delegates from alll the Russian municipalities will be present at the Czar's invitation.

It has been decided that the imperial family after their trip to western Europe and the Mediterranean and their visit to the King and Queen of Italy will proceed on the imperial yacht Standart through the Dardanelles to Livadia where the Czarina will make a prolonged stay in the hope of reestablishing her health.—Special Cable to New York Sun.

THE PHILADELPHIA SOCIETY GIRL AND GENTLEMAN JOCKEY TO WED

An event of interest to the fashionable set of New York, Newport and Philadelphia is the forthcoming wedding of Miss Frances Fell and A. J. Antelo Devereux, which is set for June 21. Miss Fell's mother had planned a yacht trip to the Mediterranean for her this summer when the young woman announced that she was engaged to be married this month. The cruise was abandoned. The heiress and the gentleman jockey—for Mr. Devereux is distinguished as such in the smart set—were constant companions at the recent horse show in Philadelphia, and their friends were not greatly surprised when the engagement was announced soon afterward. Miss Fell is a granddaughter of A. J. Drexel and will inherit many millions.

TEACHING A HORSE TO JUMP NOT DIFFICULT

Three Methods by Which To Reach Desired End.

DESCRIPTION OF THE OPERATIONS

Coaxing, Lunging and Driving Are Methods Covering the Ground of Instruction—The Driving Method Is Quickest and Surest—Almost Any Young Horse Can Learn.

There are three methods of teaching a horse to leap—coaxing, lunging and driving. In the coaxing methods the young horse is turned into a small paddock having a low hedge hurdle across the center. In plain view of the pupil a rider on a veteran jumper should take him over this hurdle several times.

The trainer then goes to the opposite side with a measure of corn or oats and calls the horse, shaking up the grain and pouring it with his hand back and forth in the receptacle. The boundary will soon be cleared and when a few mouthfuls have been eaten the station of the instructor should be at the other side of the hurdle and the lesson repeated. If this be done daily the hurdle may be gradually heightened.

The habit of jumping is thus acquired without those risks which attend a novel performance when a heavy burden oppresses the strength and whip and spur distract the attention. The horse's body, says Country Life in America, is not partially disabled by the imposition of a heavy load before the powers are taxed to the utmost and his capabilities are unfettered.

The second method is termed lunging. A long rein or cord is attached to the bit and the animal is exercised in a circle in which a hurdle has been placed or a shall ditch dug. A long lashed whip, used only to keep him in motion, or lightly applied at the proper moments, will keep him up to his work. Soon the horse will enter into the spirit of the occasion, and by unmistakable signs will manifest his enthusiastic enjoyment of the exercise.

The third method, driving, is exactly what its name implies. At first the obstruction should be slight. Any open space will answer the purpose, an earth or sod surface or tanbark being preferable. Long reins, a straight bar or snaffle bit, a long whip and patience and perseverance are required.

All things considered, the driving method is the quickest and surest way of teaching the horse to leap. When he has become somewhat proficient, having thoroughly learned what is required of him, the saddle may be called into requisition and the practical lessons begun.

Almost any young horse can be taught to leap. Of course his proficiency will depend on the care bestowed on his training and on his general characteristics of wind, limb and nerve. An ordinary cob or Morgan will attain the proficiency of an Irish hunter, but any horse that is used for a saddler will be of far greater value to his owner if he can be taken occasionally for a cross-country ride and put over ditches and low obstructions.

THE ENLARGED HORIZON.

By William T. Ellis.

The International Sunday-School Lesson for June 20 Is a Quarterly Review.

This is the day of broad views. The newspaper brings us fresh topics of conversation concerning Africa, Turkey, and the Orient. The affairs of the uttermost parts of the earth are given with the fullness and timeliness of neighborhood news. We even talk jauntily about establishing communication with Mars, as if we had encompassed all the problems of this planet, and would exercise our powers by reaching out to our neighbor across millions of miles of space.

There is no doubt about the twentieth century man's having a wide horizon. The important consideration for him is that his standpoint be correct. Broad views are helpful in the degree that they are from a right angle. This bit of New Testament history which the Sunday-schools have been studying during recent weeks suggests the true basis for cosmopolitanism, which is a spirit of helpfulness and brotherhood. There is a kind of neighborly interest—a sort of pecking-through-the-blinds spirit which is mere meddlesomeness and ill-mannered impertinence. This may not be confused with the real spirit of neighborliness. Only the latter may be called cosmopolitanism. The early Christian church quickly rose above its Judean confines and became in the fullest meaning of the term a catholic church.

Two Men and Their Visions.

Men of whom we never think as having ideals above their bank books, or the satisfaction of the hour's appetite may, all unknown to us, be men of vision and dreams. In the first of this quarter's lessons there appears the figure of a prominent officer whose calling was material and whose cares were such that probably his soldiers thought him a mere military machine. Yet Cornelius, like some of the great fighting men of our own history, lived his real life with respect to the unseen world. Browning well says:

"God be thanked, the meanest of his creatures
Has two soul-sides; one to face the world with,
And the other to show a woman when he loves her."

When Captain Cornelius was presumably engrossed in affairs of the barracks, he was really seeing in a vision an angel of God promising him a fuller message concerning spiritual truth from the Apostle Peter. A devout soldier was sent post haste to Jappa to bring thither this man of God.

Helpers are helped. The giver gets. The bestower is blessed. Peter in his service was himself shown a vision. As part of his equipment to answer the call of Cornelius, the great apostle was shown the figure of the vessel full of living creatures, and taught that naught that God has made is to be called unclean. That bit of personal work which Peter did with Cornelius broadened his own horizon and made him sensible of the truth taught long before by the Good Shepherd, that God's sheep are not all in the Jewish fold. The visions of the centurion and of the apostle practically synchronized. God's clocks always strike together. He who rules over all, prepares the worker and the work. His spirit is on the field as well as in the force. He made ready Peter and He made ready Cornelius, each unknown to the other; and only this mysterious spiritual preparation from above justifies the expectation of success in religious work.

The Prison and Prayer.

A few weeks ago a woman who had been sent to prison for the crime of kidnaping was loudly calling on God for assistance. Her ideas were of the vague and flabby kind which have no respect to God in the day of action, and turn to him only in the hour of need. The offender against God's law may not invoke God's power to prevent proper punishment. Only those who go to prison for righteousness' sake can take God with them, or find a radiant angel in their prison cells. Others, penitent, it is true, may learn to know him, even within prison walls; but it is to such as Peter, who was sent to prison by Herod for preaching the Name that God's angels come. Peter in prison was happier than Herod in his palace. There is absolutely naught outside of self that can shut a disciple off from the fellowship with his Lord, which is life's richest reward.

Christians should stand together and behind one another. It was rather stirring to note, several months ago, when a member of a Philadelphia church was arrested on suspicion of a crime, that his fellow church members, instead of indulging in uncharitable suspicion, got together and sent him a letter of love and encouragement, and stood together by him until the court had acquitted him of the charge. That is the apostolic way of doing things. While Peter was in prison the church united all its spiritual forces, and continued in earnest prayer for his relief. That is the sort of prayer which God hears "while ye are yet speaking," for the prayer-meeting had not broken up before Peter, released by an angel, stood knocking without at the door.

The mysterious spiritual forces which it seems that the mind of man can affect in this material realm, and the profound spiritual forces which prayer unleashes in God's universe, should ever be employed in offices of sympathy and service. Wherever God's people are in need because of God's name, thither should hasten the prayers and loving fellowship of all who bear the Name. The missionaries on trial in the Congo for bearing witness to the truth, the disciples in Asia Minor persecuted for their faith, the native Christians in many heathen lands who must pay a price for their discipleship—all should be objects of the tenderest solicitude of the entire church in the world.

A History-Making Man.

Good times are ushered in by good men. When God wants to do big things in the world He brings on the scene of action some great-spirited men. Thus we find the Apostle Paul appearing in the history of the apostolic church. It has been of tonic effect for the Sunday-schools to be brought into association with Paul and with Peter and their fellow-workers. All of us are inclined to boast of the distinguished men we know, and to claim relationship with even the remotest ancestors who have any reason for celebrity. By the same token we should cultivate this good society of the men and women of sacred history.

Why should we not be sedulous to take some time apart from the newspaper every day, where we come into association with the lowest and the meanest and the emptiest people of our time, in order that we may cultivate Peter and Paul and Barnabas and Stephen and Doctor Luke and Young Timothy? There is an old lady who moves constantly in this good society, and she told me a few days ago that when she gets to heaven there are a great many things she wants to ask the disciples and Abraham and Isaac and David.

The new Christian church needed a Paul. As the risen Jesus looked down upon this choice young man, with all his misdirected energies, He yearned to have him in His service, and even went in person to enlist him in discipleship. This is the way Paul was transformed from his career as a chief persecutor of Christians to the chief apostle of Jesus. Paul's own life and work is a more powerful apologetic for his doctrine than any of the theological arguments that came from his pen. A great life lived in the name and the power of Jesus is the unanswerable Christian argument.

A Once Famous, Now Smitten City.

The cables have been burdened with heart-breaking messages from this same city of Antioch of which the Sunday-schools have been learning through these recent lessons. For Antioch has been drenched with the blood of those who still bear the name of Christian, which was first applied to the disciples of Jesus in that ancient city. So also Tarsus, the birthplace of Paul, has resounded with the shrieks of the dying and persecuted Christians as they fell before the rifles and swords of the Moslem fanatics. From many points of Asia and Asia Minor the same tale is repeated. Why does not the present-day Christian church feel its old-time unity? Ancient Antioch heard the plea of suffering Jerusalem. Should not Christian Europe and Christian America hear the plea of Antioch?

Our various religious federations are getting together to stress their orthodoxy or their liberality, but where are they getting together to make clamant the voice of an outraged and sympathetic twentieth century Christendom? The cry of the East should be met by a returning hail of brotherhood and of succor. May it not be true that Christianity, after twenty centuries, is less Christian than it was when Antioch sent of its choicest and best to the service of the world, and poured out lavishly of its substance for the succor of the needy mother church?

The Church That Swarmed.

This Antioch Christian church possessed the real genius of Jesus. It was quick-eared to hear the Spirit's monitions. It was restless and not confined within itself. Night and day its thought went out to the world's needy ones. In vision, sympathy, and in effort, Antioch outreached to the environing heathen world.

Up in Antioch they knew that Christianity was at once at war with the forces of evil—note the episode of Simon the Sorcerer—and at work for the alleviation of spiritual destitution. In other words, religion then meant business. Wherever the gospel touched life it brought about results. Discipleship meant the practice of righteousness. Surely not in Antioch could have been written such an editorial as appeared in "The Boston Herald," with a truthfulness which no one denies, but which has caused the utterance to be widely quoted in the religious press: "The churches may be filled, the revival halls may be stormed by crowds, to whom the formal churches make no appeal; the name of Christ may rise from close-packed masses whose choruses shake the walls; memories of mother and the old home may bring men to their knees in tears; a splendid ardor to take up the cross and follow Him may seize upon multitudes, as it has seized upon their predecessors at intervals through hundreds of bygone years, and yet our cities remain the most conspicuous mockeries of self-government that the world can show."

Ups and Downs of Pioneers.

Sheldon Jackson died a few weeks ago; after a long life of hard fighting he has gone home covered with scars to a soldier's reward. It had been planned by his denomination to do him signal honor at its general assembly last month, for he was the home mission pioneer who, with Pauline vision, helped win a half continent for Christian civilization. The ups and downs of his active, stormy life remind us that such preaching as the Apostle Paul did was not a comfortable career of pleasant piousness. It meant real war. These studies have shown Paul preaching with mighty power, and then driven out with stonings because of the jealousy of the Jews. A few days later he was hailed as a God—and then straightway stoned again. Yet he declared that none of these things moved him. A man who has such a profound ambition as dominated his life dwells too deeply to be ruffled by adverse or favorable circumstances.

Religion and Doctrines.

The extension of the early church created problems. So long as the believers were all of the Jewish faith, their life and practice was simplified. The bringing in of the Gentiles created complexities, and it was necessary to call the first council of the Christian church at Jerusalem to decide whether the Jewish rites were still incumbent upon Gentile converts. The vote was heartily and lovingly in favor of liberalism. Those men held convictions, convictions for which they would die, yet they granted liberty in all non-essentials to their brethren. That meets the mood of our own day, which likes the motto, "In essentials unity; in non-essentials liberty; in all things charity."

The pastor of the Fifth Avenue Baptist church in New York City, recently declared publicly that the practice of immersion, while he believes it to be scriptural, is not a sufficient reason to warrant the existence of a separate denomination. What a storm of agitation would have been created by such an utterance a generation ago! Yet today it seems scarcely to have caused a ripple. Men are more concerned nowadays about finding ground on which they may stand in common. They want to hold fast to the vital, central truths. And if a man is in touch with God through Christ he may differ from his neighbor as much as he pleases in rites and forms and in observances, and Christianity may still present a united front to the world.

SHEEP CLAIMS ARE SETTLED SATURDAY

The Claims and Witness Fees Amount to $1,337.15.

Sheep claims, which, with the witness fees in each case, amount to $1,337.15, have been allowed by the county commissioners. These claims have accumulated since last June and are paid by the county, under the law, as a result of the killing of sheep of the county by dogs.

Several other claims have been held up until they can be investigated further.

MRS. EDDY AND RIVAL WHO WANTS CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH PROBED

Mrs Della M. Gilbert, long an ardent worker in the Christian Science faith and regarded in some quarters as the possible successor to Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy as leader, has issued a stirring statement and appeal to Christian Scientists to join her in an investigation of the control of the mother church and a reorganization of it. Mrs. Gilbert boldly states that "Mrs. Eddy is either dead or a helpless, mindless puppet in the hands of conscienceless men." She tells of a visit to the Brookline home of Mrs. Eddy and fruitless efforts to see the aged leader and founder of the faith. Her statement has caused widespread discussion among adherents of Christian Science and resulted in a reply from Alfred Farlow, head of the Christian Science publication committee, in which Mrs. Gilbert's motives are impugned.

CALEDONIA LODGES MEMORIALIZE DEAD

Special Services Held at the Village Sunday.

SPEAKERS DELIVER PLEASING ADDRESSES

The Odd Fellows Gather at the Presbyterian Church—Rev. James E. Gray Makes Address—W. G. Harding Talks to the Pythians at Their Hall—Tribute to the Departed.

Caledonia, June 14.—[Special.]—Caledonia Lodge, No. 299, I. O. O. F., held its annual memorial exercises at the Presbyterian church, Sunday. Rev. James E. Gray conducted the services. About sixty members of the local I. O. O. F. order and thirty members of the Rebekah fraternity attended the meeting in a body. Rev. Mr. Gray read a portion of the fourth chapter of Ecclesiastic as the Bible lesson and based his address on the fourth and twelfth verses of the same chapter. He said his aim was to instruct the living and not to eulogize the dead. He spoke of the opportunities of this life and especially of those granted in this free country. He gave incidents in his own life to prove that this country affords many opportunities to those who grasp them and make the best of them. He also spoke of the strength of union to shield the right and wage unceasing warfare against the wrong.

The members of Calanthe Lodge, No. 116, K. of P., met in their hall, Sunday afternoon, to observe their annual memorial services. Over eighty members marched to the cemetery where they were joined by sixty members of Esther Temple of Pythian Sisters. The graves of the departed members were strewn with flowers and the regular ceremonies conducted. The immense crowd of spectators then joined the orders at the east side of the grove where Rev. James E. Gray invoked the divine blessing. Warren G. Harding, of Marion, then made an address. His talk contained much of interest. His main sentiment was that, "man lives best, who lives most for his fellow men."

CHOIR OF ST. PAUL'S CHURCH GIVES CONCERT

Program Affords Much Pleasure for Patrons.

Parish-House of St. Paul's Episcopal Church Scene of Gathering of Music Lovers of the City, Monday Evening—The Contributors.

The June concert of St. Paul's Episcopal church choir, at the parish-house, was attended by a fair audience, Monday evening. The program was much enjoyed by the patrons.

The program was opened with a song by the choir "Gloria," from "Twelfth Mass." Aubrey P. Hess followed with a tenor solo "If I Could Turn the Years Back." Mr. Hess has a pleasing voice and his singing elicited much applause. The choir sang "Summer" and "Lift Thine Eyes" from "Elijah." The contribution was well received. Mrs. Georgia Wimple DeGolley sang a soprano solo, "When Celia Sings," which was very good. Mrs. DeGolley has a well trained voice. The choir followed with several short selections. After a number by a double quartet from the choir, Mrs. R. M. Brown rendered a pleasing organ solo "Rondo Capriccioso." Miss Sadaemae Allen contributed two solos "Weep, Oh Weep, Mine Eyes," and "'Tis Spring." Miss Allen won much favor with the audience.

The program was closed with a selection by the choir.

DROWNING IS DUE TO THE FEAR OF VICTIM

Panic Seizes Onlooker and the Victim Alike.

CHILDREN SHOULD BE TAUGHT HOW TO SWIM

It Is Foolish To Jump into the Water To Rescue a Drowning Person Unless One Is a Capable Swimmer. The Act Usually Means Death for Two Instead of One.

Presence of mind in time of danger and a knowledge of how to swim are two things in which Americans are inferior to some others, the English, for example. This is the opinion of a seafaring man, and it was given in a talk suggested by the recent drowning in the Hackensack river of five young persons while twice that number looked on. Lack of presence of mind, not cowardice, was mainly responsible, he thought, for the tragedy, coupled with the fact that presumably neither the lookers-on nor the victims knew how to swim.

"I can understand," said he, "persons who have lived all their life in an inland town, miles from a river or lake, being helpless when suddenly dumped in the water or on seeing others in a similar fix, but I do not understand why men and women brought up alongside the water should lose their wits under the same conditions. Surely they know, or ought to know, that for a few minutes anyway one may be as safe in the water as a cork. People living in England seaports are not nearly so scary."

A man who looks after one of the city's piers, and in his younger days was an expert swimmer, entertains also a pretty poor opinion of the general public here.

This man has helped to rescue several persons from drowning by plunging in after them, but of late in such cases he merely flings a life preserver which he keeps handy. What he would do away from the dock and with no life preserver to fling he is not certain.

"I haven't forgotten how to swim," he told a Sun reporter, "and if I knew how much or how little of a fool the person in the water was I might take a chance. If he were a stranger most likely I would stay ashore. When I was younger of course I was stronger and a lot quicker than I am now and when a person I was trying to pull out of the water fastened onto me with that fool clutch I just off and gave him a blow to stun, after which it was plain sailing. As every one knows, let a drowning man grapple so that the rescuer can't use his arms for all they are worth and the pair of them is likely to go down. When I used to go in for the rescue act I was careful, first of all, to make a grab for the clothing at the back of the neck and then hold the person away from me as I struck out with the other arm toward the shore or a boat or any other anchorage in sight and if I couldn't keep him at arm's length any other way I fell back on a knockout blow. Of course you have to learn about it. In the case of a woman it's different. Women can hold on all right, but they don't have as much strength in their arms as men have. It's easier to break their grip.

"I remember once jumping in after a woman who fell overboard from a catboat in Great South Bay on a rough day, and the first thing she did was to grab my right arm with both hands and hold on like grim death. In a flash I gave her hands a couple of sharp blows with my left and as she let go I caught her and held her off. That gave me a chance to work my right arm until the boat could pick us both up.

"Strike a man's hands and they don't budge. It takes a knockout head rap to do him any good.

"This is what I say: It's lack of a little presence of mind that is responsible for most of the drownings, and men and women act pretty much the same when they think they are in danger of drowning.

"No, I don't call every man a coward who doesn't jump in the water to help to rescue some one already in the water, for unless a man is strong and a good swimmer nine times out of ten he will be of no help at all and merely run the risk of losing his own life.

"I haven't a whole lot of respect for any man who gets so flustered as to stand still and let a man or woman drown without doing a thing to help. I have seen it happen though. I knew a New York man who got so rattled when his fishing companion fell overboard that he jumped around the boat, which the tide was taking further off every minute, yelling in an agony: 'Oh, Pete, what shall I do? I can't swim.' 'You blamed fool,' Pete roared back, 'sit down and row for all you're worth.' Pete himself wasn't much on the swimming, but he knew enough to keep his head above water till he got hold of the boat. Besides, he had presence of mind. Had his friend fallen overboard Pete on the instant would have held out one of the oars to him and the trick would have been done without any rowing.

"I once saw and heard a bunch of women stand screaming because a rowboat which two small boys had rigged up with a homemade sail capsized in the Shrewsbury river at a point where the water isn't five feet deep and so narrow one can talk across it. None of them made a move to push out in one of three rowboats tied to the little wharf not ten yards from where they stood. The mother of the boys fell in a faint. Yet these women dabbled around a little every day in a rowboat and must have known something about handling oars. Fortunately the boys were in no danger for they held on to the boat; but then it might have been different."

A man who runs a big swimming pool from June till October and gives lessons in swimming to several hundred men and women in a season says that although most persons are aware that by splashing a little with the arms and keeping up a slow treading movement with the feet the head may be kept above water a few minutes he never yet has seen a novice dumped unexpectedly into the water who made the least attempt to put this knowledge to use. On the contrary he or she, coming up sputtering, begins to yell for help, swallows a lot of water, rolls helplessly and sinks unless some one interferes. It is risky for a person who can't swim to go to the help of any one in the water, even a child, he thinks, but he has seen the latter done with such good results that he isn't willing to lay down any cut and dried rules.

"For a man to stand stock still and see a child or a young woman go under while help is on the way seems a pretty cowardly business to most of us, and one man I know well rather than do it kicked off his shoes and dropped in after a ten-year-old girl who would have sunk for good in another second," said the swiming teacher.

"This man had never tried to swim. He had never taken a lesson, he did not like the water well enough, but he had seen others swim and when he clutched the girl, who was unconscious, he tried to move his other arm as he had seen swimmers do and wiggle his legs. He was not scared a bit and both were saved.

"It is sheer terror that drowns many a man. Instead of shutting his mouth tight he opens it as far as possible and is too scared to remember what to do with his arms and feet. "If a person keeps his head the very danger he is in will almost teach him how to swim. The trouble is he doesn't keep his head. I am told that there is a pleasant little custom practiced in Russia of throwing new military recruits without warning into deep water to see what they will do. If they can't swim, this is the means taken to teach them how, and it has been found entirely effective, I believe.

"It is my business to provide a trolley for pupils too timid to take first lessons without being held up with a belt, and as a means to an end its all right; but beginners who don't need the trolley learn twice as fast as the others and they make better swimmers too."

At a well known physical culture establishment which includes a tank where swimming is taught the teacher said that in his opinion it was absolutely foolish for any one who did not know how to swim to jump to the help of a person in danger of drowning.

"The chances are a hundred to one," he announced, "that both will be drowned. I may seem cowardly for men to stand on the bank looking at some one drown and it is cowardly if there is any mortal thing they can do besides jumping in the water. There is generally something that can be done and that the average spectator hasn't presence of mind to do.

"It always surprises me to find so many men who can't swim. In my opinion by the time boys are ten years old every mother's son of them ought to know how to swim. In that case it wouldn't make so much difference whether women knew how to swim or not, supposing in an emergency a man was in sight. There are boys who never need to be taught to swim. They take to it naturally and teach themselves if anxious mammas will let them alone. There are other boys who don't take naturally to the water and won't learn to swim unless made to. They ought to be made to Every mother ought to see to it that her boy gets used to the water long before he is ten.

"Instead of doing that, though, most mothers forbid their children to go near the water and shriek and scold if a youngster tumbles in or gets his shoes and stockings wet even.

"Let a child tumble in the water a few times and he not only loses his fear of the water but he learns to use his mind while in the water and to find out some of the dangers as well as the pleasures of water sports.

"I was much interested in a young mother I met once at a seashore resort who every time she went in bathing, which was once a day, persisted in carrying with her a two-year-old boy. The sight did me good, although the boy at first screamed and kicked in a panic of fear, and all the other mothers in the place called his mother inhuman.

"She kept the baby in about two minutes the first day although his shrieks were awful, and for one week there was little improvement. After that there was no trouble and before long the little fellow would run to the beach ahead of his mother and want to start in alone, which of course he was forbidden to do. As soon as his legs are a trifle longer he is to be taught how to swim and dive, his mother said. One day I learned the reason for her Spartan methods. A favorite brother was drowned in a boat accident because he could not swim.

"Up to fifty years of age any one can learn to swim, but the earlier you begin to be at home in the water the better. Nowadays all the correct movements including floating and diving, are taught at the swimming schools, beginning with three feet of water for the timid, continuing in five and eight feet and with and without a belt and trolley. Swimming schools do a better business now than ten years ago, but after all only a small percentage of the population in my judgment knows how to swim or tries to learn to swim."

At a fashionable swimming school whose clientele is mostly of the wealthier class, pupils are taught first to turn on the back and keep afloat by means of an occasional back stroke. In some other schools this lesson is put some distance up the list. Said an instructor:

"A person who can float may easily keep up on the water for a long time and with very little exertion and his chances of being rescued in case of accident are double those of the man who can't or doesn't float. What is more, it's easier to learn to float than to swim.

"I suppose there never was a time when boating, canoeing and yachting were more generally indulged in by men who know little or nothing about swimming. After a man gets past the twenties as a rule he makes no effort to learn how to swim.

"A few years ago a man who in middle life, when he had the time and means for it, developed a perfect passion for yachting and boating answered laughingly one day when I asked if he could swim: 'Not a stroke. I expect you will hear I am drowned one of these days.' Sure enough. In less than a year I read that he had been washed overboard and drowned. The reason he gave me for not learning to swim was that it was too much like work."—New York Sun.

A Remarkable Spectacle on the Streets Tuesday.

THOUSANDS ARE OUT TO WITNESS PARADE

The Menagerie Is a Point of Great Attraction—Many Rare Animals Are on Exhibition—The Circus Contains Various Thrilling Acts. Performance in the Evening.

Honest Injun, now, wasn't the circus parade of Tuesday about the very best thing of it's kind that ever trekked over the streets of Marion? Everybody says so and what everybody says must be so.

The whole cavalcade in its newness and brightness looked as though it had just been taken from the traditional bandbox. The horses showed the effects of a winter of ease, the men and women were bright and cheerful looking and even "Old Man Grump" himself could find no cause for a kick in the display given by Barnum & Bailey. Thousands of people saw it and went about their duties, when the inevitable calliope had brought up the rear, in a more contented frame of mind than they had known in days. The parade was prompt in leaving the grounds and was in the heart of the city by 11 o'clock, its advent being hailed by the cry from innumerable small throats of "Here she comes," and when it did come it was voted a thing of beauty and a joy forever. With horses elaborately trapped out and men and women riders in fanciful and elegant costumes, bands playing, elephants trundling and camels shambling by, its open cages and their well-conditioned inmates, the long line made its way through the well-lined streets. Money has not been stinted and the wonder to most people is how on earth such an outlay of money as is represented in the parade of that morning can be justified. In horseflesh alone, thousands of dollars are concerned. Any one but a Rothschild may well be deterred from engaging in the circus business. The parade over, hundreds went to the East End show grounds and awaited the opening of the main entrances. Promptly at 1 o'clock the gates were opened and the steady rush of people continued for upwards of an hour.

The Menagerie.

The menagerie came in for early attention. One can always say that the menagerie is the best a traveling show ever carried; that the giraffes are the largest and most numerous on record, that the bi-horned rhinoceros is the only one on exhibition; that the llamas and the yaks and the Pitheciurus Scirius and a couple of score of others whose names the writer positively refuses to spell are the best in the business—but, it might not be telling the truth. With this exhibition of the Barnum show it would be, for it offers the largest and most comprehensive assortment of animals ever brought to Marion. All of them appear to be in fine shape. Two litters of lion cubs were instant favorites with the ladies, most of whom wished the keepers to pass the fuzzy little things through the bars that they might pet and coddle them. But fuzzy little things sometimes scratch and there was nothing doing in the petting line except at long distance. Several infant kangaroos were engaged in what appeared to be a jumping match in their large cage. Of lions, tigers, leopards, hyenas, jaguars, tapirs and others there was more than the usual number Three fine giraffes occupied a corral in the center of the menagerie, and took delight in looking over the heads of the menials beneath them. A large drove of camels was tethered in close contiguity to the herd of thirty elephants, and sacred cattle, zebus, zebras, etc., were to be seen in numbers. The animal exhibit was most enjoyable, and there were many inquiries for the wildebeest or gnu, type of the animal which Roosevelt bagged upon his first hunt.

A Real Circus.

Promptly at 2 o'clock the performance began in the main tent, and to describe all that took place would require an extra barrel or two of adjectives.

To cut the long-winded argument short and say it briefly, the Barnum & Bailey show this year is a real circus, hitting around the high places in circus entertainment It has size, girth and dimensions over which have been draped all the trappings of the tented showman's art. Nothing has been omitted or slumped. It was the last word in circusology, with the old-time high lights and side lights in the shape of gold brick steerers and "con" men carefully expurgated from its vocabulary. The show depended upon the 50-cent pieces which bombarded the box office on wheels for its sustenance and it didn't go away half fed.

Two of the Late Thrillers.

It would seem that all the sensations and thrillers had been exhausted long ere this. For the B. and B. show two new heart-action awakeners have been dug out of the land of things that aren't and placed flat-footed into the realm of things that are. No. 1 is the balloon horse. No. 2 is Desperado, the man with the iron diaphram. Jupiter, the balloon horse, stood on a narrow platform attached to a yellow balloon and was hauled to the top of the tent. When the apex was reached, a pyrotechnical display broke out on all sides of "Jupe." Did he plunge to the hard earth beneath and dash out not his own brains, but those of his fair rider, Mrs. Ray Thompson? Certainly not. He just gave a fine exhibition of a highly excited equine fifty feet from the ground, but stuck to the platform in spite of the fire and the noise all about him. What would happen to "Jupe" if he ever decided to reach earth ahead of the pulleys and the balloon isn't hard to guess. He would probably be decently interred in a glue factory, and when Mrs. Thompson got out of the hospital—well nothing of this sort occurred.

Desparado's Wishbone.

Concerning Desparado and his iron diaphram Desparado stood with his head touching the top of the tent. Between him and the nearest visible means of support extended forty feet of dusty atmosphere of a painfully thin nature. At the further end of this area of air was an inclined shute, its slick surface connecting with the circus lot. If you think Desparado didn't dive head first at that narrow sluice-way far below him, you are placing yourself in a position to lose a big bet. Waiting until the band stopped playing a funeral dirge, Desparado took a header, and those who weren't looking at that exact instant saw him standing on the sod the next. Desparado lit squarely on his indestructible wishbone and slid to earth. Such a feat takes nerve and causes thrills and applause.

The foregoing acts were the two big features of the day. They, of course, were only the headliners of the circus. Everything else was on the bill in great profusion. Inside the main tent were three rings and two stages. That is five if totaled on an adding machine Droves of performers flitted into the tent from the dressing rooms and circulated about the five stages and rings until one got cross-eyed trying to follow the mystic maze of the five big shows running simultaneously. The management was lavish and profligate in its hospitable treatment of its guests for the day. It put on enough for three shows and the public were invited and urged to ask for second and third helpings of everything.

On the Stage.

On the two stages and in the three rings, to say nothing of the hippodrome, there were eighteen displays, divided and subdivided until the individual happenings numbered more than 100 The performance began with a historical pageant. This was followed by a diversified potpourri of entertaining events in which High school horses were the principal actors. Next in succession were three performing herds of elephants—slang for pachyderms—who behaved better and were smarter than a majority of the children in the tent. Display No 4 included five mid-air and aerial acts of daring and skill Next to divert were three riding acts, the most novel being combination equestrians and jugglers. Display No. 6 was an array of artistic gymnastic, acrobatic and equilibristic displays of grace, skill and strength This last announcement was plagueized from the program. However, display No 6 was there just the same as were displays Nos. 7, 8 and 9, which consisted of burlesque acrobats, trained horses and educated dogs, ponies and donkeys A little more excellent bareback riding trailed in next and was followed by the best obtainable in wire walking and the feats of La Belle Victoria—what a good, old circus name this. La Belle must have come from one of the first families in circusdom. Her name didn't interfere in the least with her being a prodigious success as a wire walker, the most marvelous ever seen here.

Everything Was Different.

In swift and delightful succession came some dare-devil mule riding by the more comical of the large army of clowns. Display No. 13 contained five still different acrobatic acts and some flesh and blood Greek and Roman statuary. The riding was not over yet, because in display No. 14 were introduced "barebackers" of spangled and "tighted" glory.

Here a recess was taken so that thrills might be turned into smiles by the antics of the funny men. They had the whole tent to themselves for a few moments and wrinkles that wreathed the 8,000 faces indicated laughter. The body of clowns with the circus are pantomimists of a high order of ability. Their caricatures and burlesques throughout display talent and close application to the rules of the laugh factory. The big mid-air stuff, for which the nets are spread, came in along behind the clowns. Men turned themselves into human aeroplanes in this act and sailed through the air to the gratification and satisfaction of all who desired sensations. Display No. 18 rung down the curtain with races and other speed events. Everything with legs and youth dashed around the hippodrome in spirited contest. The four-horse Roman chariot race was run, and the thoroughbreds got the audience as excited as if it had placed money on the outcome of the match.

The show was repeated at night.

SPRECKELS HEIR AND SINGER WHOSE WEDDING IS BALKED BY WIRELESS AND FAST TRAIN

Modern railway transportation and the wireless telegraph combined to balk the plans of Cupid and halt the wedding of Claus Spreckels, son of John D Spreckles, the San Francisco multimillionaire, and Miss Mary Adele Case, a pretty concert singer, when they were hurrying from France to the United States on a fast steamship, intending to marry as soon as they set foot upon American soil. The elder Spreckels, learning of his son's matrimonial intentions, engaged a special train and dashed across the continent, arriving in New York just as the steamship, Cincinnati, was approaching Sandy Hook with the young couple on board. A short wireless message instructed the youth to stay proceedings and report to his father at a Fifth avenue hotel. This the young man did, and his father succeeded in halting the wedding, which Miss Case and her suitor, who is heir to many millions, declare will ultimately take place. Young Spreckels—he is just twenty-one—and Miss Case met in Paris and loved each other at first sight They sought to wed in the French capital, but the intricate marriage laws proved a bar, and they started for the United States, determined to carry out their intentions immediately upon their arrival. Fear that he might be disinherited is believed to have caused the young man to postpone his wedding. Miss Case is a native of Oregon, with a remarkably fine contralto voice. She toured the mining camps of the Klondike singing and then went around the world, visiting Honolulu and Australia, and was about to achieve fame as a singer in Paris when she met Spreckels.

FIFTY-THREE YEARS OF HAPPY MARRIED LIFE

Dr. and Mrs. David R. White Quietly Celebrate.

A PLEASANT AFFAIR AT COUNTRY HOME

Richwood People Are Cleaning Up Under Direction of Mayor of the Village—Veterans Hold an Annual Reunion and Enjoy a Very Pleasant Day—Richwood Notes.

Richwood, June 15.—[Special.]—Fifty-three years of married life, passed on the farm where they began housekeeping, is a record enjoyed by but few couples. Tuesday, June 8, Dr. and Mrs David R. White, who reside north of Richwood, in Jackson township, quietly and happily celebrated the fifty-third anniversary of their marriage Dr. and Mrs. White and their children had thought of holding a family reunion on the date of the anniversary, but as Mrs. White has been ill for several months, the idea was abandoned and instead of gathering at the White homestead the children, grandchildren and friends of the aged couple sent loving messages and tokens of remembrance Dr. White was born in Champaign county and came with his parents Mr and Mrs. Albert White, to Jackson township when a boy. Mrs White was formerly Miss Alice Ann Bosart and she was born in Logan county, her parents moving to Union county when she was a young girl Dr. and Mrs. White were married in 1856, Rev. William Hamilton performing the marriage ceremony. D. White is now seventy-six years of age and his wife four years younger There has been but one death in the family, a son, Elmer White, having been instantly killed, a few years ago, while working on a new barn on his farm near Essex. The following children are living: Emery White, of Richwood; Mrs. Frank Horton, of Jackson township, and Mrs. Charles Rodgers, of LaRue.

Richwood will soon be sanitary clean, Mayor C. S. Norris and the village council having ordered all residents to clean up the streets and alleys adjoining their properties. All weeds must be cut, ashes must be hauled away and all garbage disposed of. It is probable that several alleys will have to be tiled and drained and it has been suggested that all the more public alleys be paved.

Miss Bertha Howe, of Chicago, arrived in Richwood, Thursday, to visit her aunts, Mrs. J. C. Stubert and Miss Augusta Hoyt.

Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Games arrived in Richwood a few days ago from Zaleski, where the former is engaged in public school work. Mr. Games passed his boyhood days in Richwood and at one time taught in the Richwood schools. While here Mr. and Mrs. Games will occupy rooms in the Thomas Prosser residence in Beem's addition and Mr. Games will assist in repairing a dwelling which he still owns, in that part of town.

Survivors of F company, thirty-first O. V. I., held their nineteenth annual reunion, Wednesday, at the fairgrounds at Richwood. An elaborate dinner had been prepared by the wives of the soldiers and as the frequent rains had rendered the ground too wet for dinner to be enjoyed out of doors, tables were spread in the fine art hall. About eighty people were seated at the tables and justice was done to the spread. At the conclusion of dinner Rev. L. S. Colborn, pastor of the Baptist church, gave an interesting talk and was followed by a number of comrades and ladies. F company was organized at Byhalia in 1861, several members serving throughout the four years of the war. There were 146 enlistments. During the course of the war twelve members were killed or mortally wounded, ten contracted diseases from which they died, thirty-four were slightly wounded, twenty were discharged on account of disability and eleven were transferred to other commands. The survivors living in Richwood who were present at the reunion were Uriah Cahill, W. S. Winters, George Harriman, S. A. McNeil, T. D. Chapman, H. S. Colver, D. C. Parish and Melvin Middleton. Other survivors present were Michael Blue and J. D. Chapman, of Jackson township; J. H. Andrews, of Continental; H. D. Andrews, of Plain City; John Hartshorn, of Raymond; Seth Clark, of Peoria; M. Madden, of Kenton. The next reunion will be held at Richwood in June, 1910. The new officers of the association are John Hartshorn, president; Uriah Cahill, secretary-treasurer.

C. Ernest Hill arrived in Richwood a few days ago from Boulder, Colorado, to spend the summer with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William Hill. Mr. Hill is studying medicine in the University of Colorado, at Boulder.

Robert Graham, a son of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Graham, of Chicago, who spends each summer in Richwood with his grandmother, the aged Mrs. Jane Graham, is suffering a serious attack of inflammatory rheumatism at his home in Chicago, delaying the arrival here of the Graham family.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Woodruff left, Friday, for Columbus, to spend a few days with their children, Mrs. F. W. Marriott and Howe Woodruff and families.

Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Wolgamot, of Billings, Oklahoma, have been guests of the former's brother, M. C. Wolgamot and family, of south Franklin street, during the past week.

The Richwood Tri-County Fair association is planning for a big fair this year, August 3-6. This is much earlier than the fair has ever been held before and it is thought that the change of date will increase the attendance which, however, has always been very good. The amphitheater, which was enlarged a few years ago, is being moved back from the race track about twenty-four feet. Since the track was widened, a year ago, the amphitheater has stood just at the edge of the track. Trees are being trimmed throughout the grounds and the necessary repairs will be made to all the buildings.

The following pupils of Claiborne township schools were awarded Patterson certificates at the Patterson commencement held in the office of Township Clerk George R. Gum, Thursday afternoon: Clyde Biddle, Marion Scott, Eunice Moore and Ethel Fox. The commencement was in charge of Miss Marie Glasmeyer.

Paul Scoles, of Alger, visited old friends in Richwood during the past week. Mr. Scoles is a son of Rev. Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Scoles, who formerly lived here when Rev. Mr. Scoles was pastor of the M. E. church. Mr. Scoles is editor of the Alger Gazette and is doing well. His parents are living on their farm near Ada.

Mrs. R. H. Allison was hostess to the Young Married Women's Embroidery club, Friday afternoon at her home on Beatty avenue, this being the last meeting for the season Following a season of needlework the hostess served luncheon and a very pleasant social hour was spent. Mrs. R. R. Gill was appointed president of the club for the ensuing year, the term of Mrs. R. W Lenox having expired. The guests at the meeting were Mrs. F. C. Hottell, of Cleveland; Mrs. Harry Prinehom, of Mansfield, and Mrs. Owen Livingston, of Richwood.

Mrs. Tennery, left, Friday, for Marion, to spend several days with her nephew, F. C. Smith and family.

Misses Blanche Whitehead and Nellie Street were in Marion, Friday.

Miss Ethel Fisher visited relatives in Marion during the past week.

Mr and Mrs. A. B. Conkright have returned to Richwood from Centralia, Oklahoma, to which city they moved last November. They expect to make this their home again.

Joseph Ross attended the annual reunion of the Squirrel Hunters' association held in Columbus, Wednesday, June 9. There are several members of the association living in Richwood but Mr. Ross was the only one in attendance at the reunion.

Mrs. Mary Fulton, at her home on east Blagrove street, was hostess to the Ladies' Missionary society of the Presbyterian church, Friday afternoon. An interesting program was rendered, with Mrs. H. V. Spicer as leader.

Mrs. B. F. Wagstaff, of Chicago, and Mrs. Avery Haines, of Bellefontaine, have returned to their homes after a pleasant visit with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Hill, of east Ottawa street.

FLAG DAY OBSERVED BY THE LOCAL ELKS

Special Exercises Held at the Hall, Monday Evening.

SOME APPROPRIATE ADDRESSES MADE

Order of the Eastern Star Holds a Meeting and Transacts Business. A Regular Business Session of the Pythian Sisters—Secret Society Notes Picked Up in the City.

Flag day was beautifully observed by Marion Lodge, No. 32, B. P. O. Elks, Monday night, in the Elks' hall in the Masonic block, on east Center street. The hall was elaborately decorated with "Old Glory." The purpose of the services, which were largely attended, was to do honor to the stars and stripes, to commemorate its birth and "to signalize the achievements wrought beneath its folds."

Following introductory exercises by the exalted ruler and officers, Chaplain James W. Wark invoked the divine blessing. He was followed by William T. Smith, who read a short history of the nation's flag.

A quartet composed of L. E. Starr, Walter Moore, Richard Horn and Ernest L. Owen sang "Columbia the Gem of the Ocean."

A very pretty feature of the service was the erection of the floral bell of liberty on the lodge altar, which was draped with a silk flag. Esquire Edward L. Trott removed a purple covering at the station of the esteem leading knight, William H. Holverstott, who placed in position the first section of the floral bell. It was composed of red roses. The second section of white lilies was placed in position by Esteemed Loyal Knight Harry S. Elliott and the third section composed of violets by Esteemed Lecturing Knight K. H. Marshall On these were placed a crown-piece-evergreens and stars—which completed the nation's bell of liberty and represented the wedding of the nation's colors and the affixing of the light of the first American stars to the bars of the nation's flag.

"Auld Lang Syne" was sung by the members and officers, when Charles H. Conley was introduced and delivered the Elks' beautiful tribute to the American flag.

Mrs. K. H. Marshall recited "The Flag Goes By," Grant E. Mouser delivered an eloquent patriotic address and the exercises were brought to a close by the audience singing "America."

Only routine business was transacted at a largely-attended meeting of the Pythian Sisters, Monday evening. The next meeting will be held in two weeks.

At a regular meeting of Lydia Chapter, No. 83, Order of the Eastern Star, Monday evening, some business of importance was given attention. The attendance was good.

The bride and groom arrived in this city, this morning, to make their future home in the Colonial flats on west Center street.

"We didn't elope," said the happy groom, Tuesday. "We just arranged to meet in Cincinnati and be married in Kentucky."

Mr. Millet came to Marion last summer from Circleville. He has made many friends during his residence here. The bride is possessed of a charming personality, and is a fine musician.

EXERCISES HELD AT VARIOUS CHURCHES

Children's Day Is Observed in a Pleasing Manner.

PROGRAMS ENJOYED BY LARGE AUDIENCES

The Programs Consist of Musical Selections, Vocal and Instrumental, Declamations and Short Addresses. Pupils Promoted by the Different Schools—Other Gatherings.

The annual Children's day exercises of the Epworth M. E. church Sunday-school were held, Sunday morning. A program replete with interesting and entertaining numbers was rendered and enjoyed by a vast audience. The church was quite attractive with its decorations of flowers and potted plants.

The program was opened with a march in which the primary and kindergarten departments took part. Musical numbers were contributed by the several departments and pupils. Selections were given by Sheldon Eckfeld, accompanied by Mrs. Bartley Eckfeld; Carl Dombaugh, accompanied by Mrs. V. E. Dombaugh; Homer Smart accompanied by Mrs. Earle Smart; Gladys Clark, accompanied by Mrs. John Clark; Josephine Lawrence, accompanied by Mrs. P. Lawrence; a quartet composed of Helen Beaver, Lucille Robinson, Rosella Robinson, and Charity Lederer. Grace Bain, Helen and Gertrude Zuck and a chorus composed of members of several classes. All were well received.

Paul Baughman delivered the address of welcome and his efforts were much appreciated. Deckamations by Anna May Boger Hecox, Martha Smith, Helen Beaver, Edgar Barnhart, and Ozella Court were nicely given.

One of the features of the program was the "Buttercup Song" rendered by the following girls from the primary department: Helen Jacoby, Katherine Conlan, Miriam Smart, Donna Carey, Elizabeth Henry, Mildred Ruhl, Pauline Ruhl, Marie Lawson, Mildred Wilhelm, Thelma McCurdy and Charity Lederer.

The primary department is in charge of Mrs. Frank Sifritt and to her much credit is due for the success of the exercises.

A Nice Program.

Children's day and promotion exercises were held by the Sunday-school of the Free Baptist church, Sunday morning, during the regular preaching hour. A long program was rendered.

Following a song by the Sunday-school, Rev. G. E. Barnard, the pastor, invoked the divine blessing. J. S. Rayl, the Sunday-school superintendent, gave a charge to the standard-bearers in a scripture reading. After a recitation by Miss Mildred Mather, a song entitled, "We Will All Do Our Best," was sung by one of the Sunday-school classes.

Recitations were given by Miss Isabel Uncapher, Miss Elsie Barnard, and Master Robert Murphy. Songs were sung by the various classes, the whole Sunday-school taking part.

At Calvary Church.

A very pleasant program was rendered in observance of Children's day at the Calvary Evangelical church, Sunday morning. The exercises were largely attended, the church presenting a pleasing appearance with its decorations of banners, cut flowers and potted plants.

The program opened with a song by the school, followed by a welcome by seven boys. Rev. C. W. Hensel led in prayer, after which the primary pupils sang "Children's Day." "Our Greeting" was the title of a selection by Florence Hensel and four girls of the school. Miss Sylvia Ash gave a pleasing recitation. 'Roses for Children's Day" was the title of a sketch by six girls. Miss Mary Hensel followed with a recitation entitled "A Merry Day."

The Sunday-school orchestra rendered a selection. "The Seven Sisters," by Miss Diehl's class was the next number. An exercise entitled "When I'm a Man" was followed by a pleasing vocal solo by Meriam Wiley. "I Feel So Sorry" was the subject of a recitation by Bessie Zimmer. Marie Brun recited "I'd Like to Send a Message" in a pleasing manner. Grace Brokaw contributed "A Missionary Spirit," which was followed by a dialogue entitled "Ten Little Pennies," by ten little boys. A solo by Hilda Stone and the rendition of "Jesus the Light of the World" by twenty-three children was followed by a piece by Marie Stull and Harry Downs, which closed the program.

Pleasant Evening.

The Bible-school of the First Christian church gave its annual Children's day program, Sunday evening, the church being well-filled. Rev. Charles E. Miller dispensed with his usual Sunday evening discourse in order that the time could be devoted to the rendition of the long program for the children.

The church was decorated with flags and flowers, and every member of the Sunday-school took some part in the program, which was in charge of Miss Amanda Decker, the superintendent. The program consisted of songs and recitations.

Baptismal service followed the Children's day exercises.

SAFE IS BROKEN AND VALUABLES SECURED

Cracksmen Visit Amicon's Store Friday Night.

The safe in the office of the John Amicon Brothers & Company was cracked open by burglars some time Friday night, and a small amount of money was secured. Entrance to the office was gained by prying open a back door to the storage house with a bar and pick stolen from the toolhouse of the Big Four railroad, near the ice plant.

The outer door of the safe was not locked and had been left partly open. On the door was a card bearing the words, "Door Open. Safe Contains No Money." Evidentally the thieves put little confidence in this notice for they broke open the small safe on the interior of the large safe and by use of the pick and iron bar, broke open all of the small doors and ruined the interior of the safe. The burglars secured $1.20 in money besides a number of old coins belonging to S. M. Court and a gold watch belonging to his wife. Among the old coins were a number of eagle pennies of the year 1857 and 1858, some Columbian half dollars, an old dollar and some foreign half pennies and other United States coins.

The burglary was reported to the police, Saturday, and several parties were suspected for a time, but on investigation it was learned that they had nothing to do with the job. The police, however, have a clue that may lead to the arrest of the guilty parties.

THREE REPUBLICANS WHO LEAD FIGHT FOR GREATER REDUCTION OF TARIFF

The utterances of Mr. MacVeagh, secretary of the treasury, regarding the reorganization of the Republican party gave lusty encouragement to those Republican senators from the Middle West who are arrayed with the majority of the Democrats in the senate for a genuine reduction of the tariff. When Mr. MacVeagh said "it might become at any time the duty of any great party leader to create for his party a new majority and control" his remarks were regarded as the sentiments of the president and were construed by the senators from the Middle West as open encouragement to their efforts for tariff revision downward. The vote on the wool schedule when the senate decided by a vote of forty to thirty for a rate increase developed the strength of the "progressives." Those Republican senators voting against the increase were Beveridge, Bristow, Brown, Burkett, Clapp, Cummins, Dolliver, La Follette and Nelson, all from the Middle West. Senators La Follette, Dolliver and Beveridge have been the foremost figures on the Republican side in combating the Aldrich schedules, and the Democrats count strongly upon them for support in the event of the income tax measure coming to a vote.

FINE HUNTING ABOUNDS IN PHILIPPINE ISLANDS

Wild Carabao Is the Game Most Sought,

BY NIMRODS IN EASTERN ISLANDS

Wild Hogs Are Also Sought—Deer Are Plentiful—It Is Possible To Get Good Shooting at the End of a Six Hours' Trip from the City of Manila.

Since the terrible baguios and cloudbursts of last October the wild game of the mountains has come down toward the valley much closer than ever before. It is possible to get good shooting six hours out of town, although the better grounds are further away. Wild carabao, deer and pig are the principal animals sought. The hunters arrange with friendly native hunters who, with hunting dogs, beat the bush.

Mr. Thomas, principal of the High school, a few weeks ago, assisted by some very clever native hunters, brought in five deer. A few weeks since the hunters were in ground so rough they could not use their ponies. They stood along one side of an opening and sent the dogs into the bush, expecting some wild hog. Instead ten wild carabao walked out briskly and sniffed the air. The boys as briskly looked for a tree. Mr Thomas, at the head of the line, dropped a "forty-nine-ninety" soft nosed bullet through the lungs of the rear carabao. The animal plunged ahead, snorting blood, which stampeded the whole herd.

On they rushed down the line as the boys "shinned" up a tree. At the lower end of the line was Mr Harpst, who only could find a little bush, right in the line of the carabao rush. As he climbed the bush it began to bend, and on the bunch came right in his direction. By a good chance shot one of the boys hit the lead carabao on the nose. The animal snorted and turned to one side; all followed him except the animal shot through the lungs. Mr. Harpst sat quietly in the bush, and luckily the wounded animal did not see him as he rushed by within a few feet. Then dropping to the ground he sent a bullet, breaking a hind leg. Still the animal, on three legs and snorting blood, ploughed ahead. The boys followed as he went into the woods. Finally, tangled with underbrush, he fell exhausted and died.

These carabao seem to have a history. The old settlers shrug their shoulders and with bated breath tell of a time years ago when some rich Filipinos had large corrals located in the mountains to prevent disease. Then some outlaws killed the owners of the corrals in a series of foul murders to get their cattle. On a dark night when trying to drive the carabao away they stampeded and went to the mountains; and it is said that the wild herd are the offspring of the old corrals.

A tame strain still seems to run in the calves. A while ago, when an old carabao was shot the little calf remained by her side. Two hunters approached and slipped a noose over the little fellow's head and led him away. —Correspondence in Manila Times.

FARM WORK FOR THE FAMILY IN COUNTRY

A New York Woman Solves the Vacation Problem.

HEALTH AND PROFIT FOUND BY A WIDOW

She Takes Her Three Sons and All Spend Three Months Working About Farm—Good Pay for Their Labor and Health Is Bettered by Change—A Pleasant Plan.

"For four years now I have been taking my family of three boys to Illinois for the summer to work on a farm."

The speaker was a woman whose husband died about six years ago of tuberculosis, leaving her with a very small income on which to bring up and educate their three young sons, none of whom was strong.

"It is the best plan I have been able to devise for keeping my home together here in New York and giving my children the healthful summer outing necessary," she continued. "The first year we went my eldest son and I were the only workers. Now we are all engaged to do some part of the farm work.

"We go for the three months when the demand for labor is at its height. I help the farmer's wife, daughter and regular hired girl cook, wash, put up fruit and vegetables and do anything else that comes to hand. For doing this work I receive $25 a month.

"My eldest son, who is not in college, will receive $30 a month this year on the farm, a raise of $10 since last summer. The younger boys both get $15 and earn it.

"Unless a person has lived on a Western farm at this season of the year when the huge crops are being prepared for and harvested he cannot conceive of people in the country ever being so busy and in such a rush. If things were not made so comfortable for the workers they would never stand it.

"I have never seen such bountiful supplies of food as it is the habit out there to lay in against the harvest time. Everything that can be made and laid by for that time is prepared. Barns, haylofts and every nook and corner are made ready to house the extra help. That is where my work comes in.

"Of course a man in making these preparations could in many instances do as well and perhaps better than a woman. The trouble is to get the men. Out there on the large farms they generally have to take the help they can get and make it do. Although harvesters come out there in droves there never seem to be enough. The cry ever since we have been going there is for more, more.

"My reason for going there is that we can make money while living in the open. Every minute of the time means health and strength for my boys. They are strong and healthy enough now, but I don't mean to give up keeping them at outdoor work for several years to come. If a like precaution had been taken with my husband in his youth I am convinced he would be with me today.

"Being regular help, we have the advantage of sleeping in the homestead. My three sons have a room which has so many windows that it is next to sleeping out of doors. I am put in the room with the hired girl.

"Being a hired girl out there doesn't mean what it would here in the East. There the girls go out from home to work for their neighbors or friends who need their services and are able to pay for them. They suffer no social humiliation. On the contrary they have a better opportunity of showing off their accomplishments as housekeepers and cooks than they would have if they remained at home where an elder or a younger sister shared honors with them.

"Two of the hired girls who have worked on the farm where we go have married off during the four years we have been going there. Both married independent farmers, one the son of the house. She was a lovely girl, well educated and industrious, and the man's family were glad to have him so well settled.

"The hired girl who is to be there this year is a college graduate. She worked her way through college, it seems, without any idea of a profession that would keep her in a city, but simply to be well educated and to add to her information about managing a household. They say she is very pretty and not a bit stuck up, though she believes in reading good books and subscribes to a New York paper and magazine.

"You hear a great deal about the lack of conveniences on the farm. That is true here in the East, where the farms are small and the profits come by close shaving, but out in the West, where things are done on the largest scale, where acres are counted by the hundreds and each made to produce its maximum, conditions are much better for the women.

"The place where I go has had a telephone for more years than I know about. There is water in the house, all over it and in every outbuilding where it is needed. The women have new clothes and vehicles about as often as women do in cities, I mean well-to-do people.

"Farming out there doesn't mean hard work and poverty added to seclusion and lack of knowledge of the world. The reason my son was so anxious to get a college course was that both sons of the farmer who employs us had been through college.

"One of them was a football player at one of the great colleges here in the East. He knew all about New York and the other great cities of the country and yet he was there working with his sleeves turned up and bareheaded. His college course had taught him the independence of labor as well as how to exert his faculties to the best advantage.

"Now both of those sons have farms of their own and one of them is in the legislature, about the most prominent man in his community. I am glad enough to have my boys see and know the advantages of such a life and be thrown in with such men.

"I must come back to New York each winter, because to educate my boys it is necessary for me to supplement my little income with my earnings as a visiting accountant. I keep the accounts for several well-to-do New York women who are not able to employ a secretary and yet need some one to help them out in the management of their households.

"They all go away from the city during the summer, so unless I followed them there would be nothing for me to do. Going to this farm not only gives us the best sort of outing among surroundings entirely different but enables us to bring back a few dollars.

"This year we expect to have between $125 and $150 to show for our three months' holiday. This, with the store of strength and health which we are sure to gain will add a good deal to our comfort during the coming cold months.

"It has been a long time since there has been a doctor bill to pay in our home, and if keeping my boys in the open air during the summer has as much to do with it as I believe the months spent in the West would be more than paid for, even if we didn't make a dollar.

"I have often wondered why more women don't go from New York to the farms not only in the West but right here at home during the slack season. Many shopgirls and women employed in the factories are out of work during the hot months and complain of having to spend all they earn during the winter to pay their way during the summer. If they would only get into the country where the farmers are all begging for help they could at least make enough to pay their expenses and so keep them from using up their winter's savings."—New York Sun.

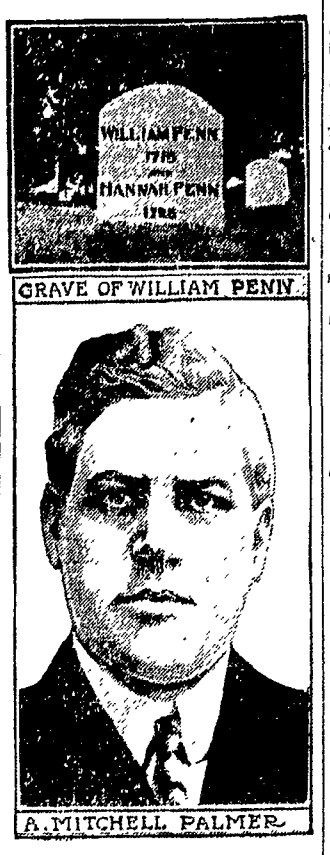
WANTS PENN'S BODY BROUGHT BACK TO UNITED STATES



A Mitchell Palmer, representative from Pennsylvania, is leading the movement to have the United States bring the coffin containing the body of William Penn to this country and have it interred on the banks of the Delaware. The body of Penn now reposes in a practically abandoned cemetery in Buckinghamshire, England, and, considering his distinguished career, the grave is not appropriately marked. Mr. Palmer intends to take the matter up with the president and endeavor to get his support.

WILL TRY ITALIANS IN FOREST CITY NEXT FALL

Officers Satisfied They Have the Right People.

RESULT OF SEARCH OF THE LIMA HOUSE

Inspectors Say Salvatore Lima, of This City, Is Boss of Ohio Black Hand—Shotguns, Revolvers, Stilettos and Ammunition Found in Lima's Home—Division of Money.

The ten Italians arrested in various Ohio cities by federal authorities as members of an alleged Ohio Black Hand will be tried in Cleveland for conspiracy, says a wire from Cleveland. District Attorney W. L. Day said Saturday the prosecutions would be taken up at the fall term of court.

"We are satisfied that the right people are under arrest," Day said. "The Ohio Black Hand was well organized, and their operations widespread.

"The Ohio branch was represented in eastern cities and as far west as Chicago."

Inspector J. F. Oldfield said the evidence secured from letters warranted more arrests. These will be made as soon as the men can be found, he said.

Inspectors Oldfield, George Bate, A. P. Owen, M. C. Olosford and E. F. Hatches held a conference Saturday with District Attorney Day and Assistant Garry at Cleveland. Evidence against the men under arrest was gone over and plans for the prosecution made.

Inspectors charge that Salvatore Lima, arrested with Joseph Batagalia and Salvatore Rizzo here, was the "boss" of the Ohio Black Hand. Meetings were held at Lima's home, they say, and plans for demanding money of wealthy Italians were prepared at these meetings. In Lima's home the inspectors say they found four shotguns, three revolvers, four stilettos and 100 rounds of ammunition. The ammunition was concealed in stockings.

Marked shotgun shells were found which were loaded with one ounce lead balls, inspectors say.

Inspectors say money received by the Ohio Black Hand, was divided at the local meetings. After one meeting, they say $1,980 was mailed to a man in Italy. They charge the money was used in the defense of the murderer of B. Blanno, a Dennison merchant, killed while in Italy. He received letters threatening his life unless large sums of money were paid.

A bomb found under the porch of John Amicon's home in Columbus and stored in a safe in the office of the Columbus Sporting Goods company exploded during a fire and wrecked the building.

The Ohio Black Hand, inspectors say, had nothing to do with the death of Lieutenant Petrosino, the New York detective.

The Nuzzo brothers, arrested in Cleveland, are held in the Cuyahoga county jail in default of $2,500 bond.

FURTHER EVIDENCE AGAINST LIMAS

Bond Is Increased and Men Are in Toledo Jail.

Because of further evidence of guilt found against Salvatore and Sebastian Lima, two of the four Italian "Black Handers" held at Toledo, their bond has been raised from $2,000 to $5,000. They are now committed in the county jail in Toledo. The charge against the men was also changed from "using the United States mails in an artifice to defraud" to "conspiring to commit an offense against the laws of the United States." The latter is a more serious crime and is punishable by a maximum fine of $10,000 and not more than two years' imprisonment.

THE ABEL & COONROD RESTAURANT BURNS

Blaze Is Started by Grease Catching Fire.

WORKERS ARE DRIVEN FROM THE BUILDING

Efforts Are Made To Stay Progress of the Flames, but They Spread Rapidly and Gut the Evans Block. The Loss Is Estimated at $5,000. Covered by Insurance.

Just before 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, fire broke out in the Evans block, on east Center street, occupied by Abel & Coonrod. The blaze started in the front part of the basement which is used as a kitchen.

The fire was started by some grease catching fire in a skillet and igniting the rafters and floor above. There were six women in the kitchen and all were forced to make their escape quickly. Mrs. Wilson, one of the cooks, had one of her arms badly scorched. Mrs. Emma Camm, who is employed in the kitchen, had her five-year-old daughter with her at work, that morning. When Fred Teets, an employe at the lunch counter, saw the woman run from the burning building without the child, he rushed to the kitchen to see if the child was in the building. He was overcome and had to be pulled out by others. S. N. Abel fought the fire until he was overcome by the smoke and he had to be dragged from the basement.

The floor above the kitchen was as dry as powder and when the blaze broke out the fire spread rapidly over the basement. Both of the proprietors were present when the alarm was given and made heroic efforts to extinguish the flames, but were driven back by the smoke and flames. The employes of the place fought the fire, but as it was spreading so rapidly they could do little towards subduing the blaze, and were driven from the place.

Within a few minutes after the fire was discovered the basement was in flames and the restaurant above was filled with smoke, the patrons and clerks being driven out. On the arrival of the department three lines of hose were laid and the whipping nozzle put into use. The unsafe condition of the floor and the smoke prevented the firemen from entering the building and it was with difficulty that they were able to get the fire under control. The flames had eaten their way up under the stairway leading to the upper floors and had broken out through the first floor of the building in the room occupied by the cafe, bar and billiard and pool parlor.

Nearly all of the furniture and stock in the front part of the room is ruined. The loss is estimated by one of the proprietors at about $5,000 covered by insurance.

The building is now owned by H. N. Oberlander, of Bucyrus.

THE ERIE SUFFERS A VERY SERIOUS WRECK

Passenger Train Crashes into Rear of Freight.

HOMER BENNETT IS BADLY INJURED

Engineer Jumps, but Is Caught in the Wreck—Others on Train Bruised and Cut—Wreck Near Ohio City at Early Hour Tuesday Morning. Some Railroad Notes.

The Erie suffered a serious wreck at Ohio City, shortly after 3 o'clock Tuesday morning, when Erie passenger, No. 3 dashed into the rear of fast freight, No. 80. As a result, Homer Bennett, engineer of the passenger train, is in a serious condition, three cars of the passenger were derailed, the caboose and one freight car of the freight train were burned and about ten or twelve cars of the freight were derailed. Traffic was held up about five hours.

No authentic account of the cause of the wreck has been received. However, as the engine was about to dash into the rear of the freight, Bart Myers, road foreman of engines; Engineer Bennett and Fireman Waickel jumped to save their lives. Engineer Bennett stuck to his post until he had set the air and did everything possible to avoid the collision. The engine telescoped the caboose and the freight cars were sent forward with a crash. All the trainmen jumped.

Bennett suffered a dislocated right shoulder. His right arm was also broken above the elbow and he suffered severe cuts about the left hand and body. Myers and Waickel escaped with body bruises.

The wrecking crew from Huntington was summoned and cleared the wreck in about five hours. Erie passengers, Nos. 8 and 12, were over four hours late.

LITTLE ONE DRINKS A DEADLY DRAUGHT

Iona Griffith Suffers a Frightful Death.

INFANT, LEFT ALONE, DRINKS CARBOLIC ACID

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Griffith, of Prospect—Child Secures Acid from Kitchen Cabinet. Given Prompt Attention, but Dies of Her Burns, Sunday Evening.

Prospect, June 14.—[Special.]—Iona, aged one year and six months, the only child of Mr. and Mrs. William Griffith, of this place, met a sad death at the home of her parents Sunday.

About 6:30 o'clock Sunday morning, while the child's mother was absent from the house doing the morning work, the child climbed up on her high-chair to a kitchen cabinet and secured a bottle of carbolic acid. She drank a small quantity of the fluid.

Dr. M. M. Dix was immediately summoned and rendered all possible aid, but the little one died in great agony at 8:30 o'clock in the evening. The child was terribly burned about the mouth and throat, and its sufferings were terrible.

Mrs. Griffith, the child's mother, was formerly Miss Lilly Heary. As the little one was the only child of the afflicted parents, the case is especially sad.

The funeral will be held from the Baptist church, Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock, Rev. A. J. Clere officiating. The remains will be interred in the Prospect cemetery.

THE SECOND MEETING OF THE ASSOCIATION

First District Jr. O. U. A. M. Memorial Gathering.

MEMBERS OF ORDER GATHER IN THE CITY

A Number of Councils of the Junior Order, United American Mechanics, and Daughters of America Hear Address at Free Baptist Church and Cemetery.

The second meeting of Memorial association of the first district of the Junior Order of United American Mechanics was held here, Sunday afternoon, there being large delegations of the order and its auxiliary, the Daughters of America, from Galion, Shelby, Mansfield, Ashland, Bucyrus and Nevada. The exercises were quite impressive.

Marching from the lodge hall, about 400 members of the Jr. O. U. A. M. and Daughters of America marched to the Free Baptist church. The procession was led by the Marion band.

The program was opened with prayer by William Ridenour. After a song by a quintet composed of L. D. Zachman, R. F. Stull, W. E. Stull, S. V. Williams and E. L. Williams, Rev. George E. Barnard delivered a pleasing address. Rev. Mr. Barnard spoke of the principles of the order as he understood them, and admonished the lodge members to be faithful in their troth to the order. He brought out the necessity of teaching children when they are young, to be obedient and respectful. He thought it very important that the Bible should be taught to children in the schools.

The councils then proceeded to the cemetery, where graves of twelve members of the Jr. O. U. A. M. and one Daughter of America were decorated by sixteen flower girls.

After a song by the quintet, Rev. C. E. Miles delivered an impressive address. Rev. Mr. Miles spoke feelingly on "Loyalty." He advised fathers and mothers to be specially careful in bringing up their children, to train them to be loyal as well as faithful and good. He was much impressed with the need of use of the Bible in the public schools. He spoke feelingly of the need of patriotism in the country and how it should be taught to children in the schools. He closed with a reference to the departed members. The throng sang "God Be With You Till We Meet Again."

The party returned to the lodge hall where a season of social intermingling was enjoyed.

Appointed Clerk.

George T. Geran, an attorney, was appointed clerk of the Marion county board of review at a meeting of its members in the probate court-room, this morning. Geran is a Republican. Many applications had been made for the job, which pays $2.50 a day when the board is in session.

The total amount of sheep claims and fees allowed appraisers by the county commissioners, June 8, was $1,503.95. This is paid out of the dog fund, which contains $2,541.16.

ANOTHER RAID MADE BY THE INSPECTORS

Salvatore Lima's Place Is Again Searched.

WEAPONS SEIZED BY THE OFFICERS

A Great Deal of Ammunition Is Also Secured—The Shells Are Heavily Charged with Powder, Buckshot and Ball—Woman Thought To Have Escaped with Papers.

Postoffice Inspectors J. F. Oldfield and George Pate arrived in the city, Saturday evening, and at once went to the mayor's office where they secured a warrant to search the place of Salvatore Lima, on north Main street, to secure a small arsenal which the inspectors discovered in a search at the Lima store about a week ago.

Lima is believed to be the leader of the Black Hand gang of Ohio. In the search a week ago, papers were taken from his place which are alleged to connect him with the gang. Guns and ammunition were found in this search, but these were not disturbed. After the finding of the arsenals in the homes of the Black Hand suspects at Dennison, Cleveland, Bellefontaine and Columbus, the state's district attorney ordered the inspectors to secure the guns and ammunition which they discovered at Lima's place.

Chief Cornwell and Officer Cusic accompanied the two inspectors to the Lima place to assist in the search, about 6 o'clock Saturday evening. The search resulted in the finding of two twelve-gauge double-barreled shotguns, one of which is a short-barreled brush gun. Each was loaded. Aside from this, the officers found about 100 shells, part of which were loaded, shot, powder, balls, cartridges and loading tools. Each of the shells contained a heavy charge of powder, a sub-charge of buckshot and a lead ball having the diameter of a dime.

All of the wads on top of the loaded shells were marked with an X and the inspectors state that the shells found in the raids at the other places bore a similar mark and were loaded in exactly the same way. It is believed that the shells were loaded and furnished by Lima and bore the mark on the wad as an indication that they were right. Lima informed the directors that he had the guns at his place for the protection of his business, to shoot in the air and frighten burglars away. One of the guns was found in Salvatore Lima's room above the store and the other in the room believed to have been occupied by Antonio Lima, who skipped out at the time of the search last week. It was believed that Antonio Lima, was at the place, Saturday evening, when the officers called to make the search. They were delayed by Lima who secured Joe Ignoffo, his brother-in-law, to translate the search warrant, and it is believed that Antonio Lima made his escape. It is also said that one of the women in the house secured a third gun that was hidden and escaped with it. Some papers and letters were also secured in the search, and it is believed that other important papers and letters were secured by one of the women and taken to a place of safety before the search was made.

In view of the evidence secured by the inspectors in the raid, Lima will be required to give additional bond for his appearance. On a charge of using the mails to defraud, he was released on a bond of $2,000 by United States Commissioner Gaines, Thursday. District Attorney Day at Toledo Monday ordered him brought in and the bond increased to $5,000. The weapons secured by the inspectors in the raid were taken to Columbus, Saturday evening.

GENERAL TAX LEVY IS GIVEN A BOOST

More Money Needed To Meet Certain Expenses.

To pay the cost of taking the decennial appraisement this fall, the county commissioners at their session, Saturday afternoon, increased the general levy from 6.855 mills to 8.755 mills. It is estimated that the expense to Marion county taxpayers in making the appraisement will amount to $18,000 or $20,000.

Following is the levy made:

County, 3.400; children's home, .555; infirmary, 1.000; bridge, .7; pike, 1.9; election, .140; soldiers' relief, .200; judicial, .300; county debt, .360; indigent, .200.

In addition to this three mills will be levied to pay off ditch bonds.

MORE NEW BUILDINGS FOR THE BIG COMPANY

Marion Steam Shovel Company Lets Contracts.

MEETING THE DEMAND FOR GREATER CAPACITY

A New Erecting Room and a Chipping Room Included in Contracts. Local Bidders Carry Off a Nice Share of Contracts—Work To Be Begun Quickly.

The Marion Steam Shovel company let the contracts, Saturday, for the balance of the proposed improvements to the plant, to the Marshall McClintic company of Pittsburg. There were a number of bidders. The new buildings included in this contract are an erecting room and a chipping room.

The company has been working on plans for a number of new structures for the last few months, an increase in capital stock resulting from the decision of the directors to increase the capacity of the plant. With the contracts let Saturday five new buildings have been let. These are the new steel plant, the pattern room, the new office, the chipping room and the new erecting room. All of these buildings when erected will be on the new property acquired by the company within the last two years.

The erecting room is to be 150 by 250 feet, while the chipping room is to be eighty by 150 feet. The work will be taken up on the last two buildings within a short time. Already the steel plant and the pattern room have been completed and ground has been broken for the office building. A pleasing feature of these contracts is that the Wollenweber Lumber company of this city has been awarded the contract for all lumber, mill and carpenter work and has procured these contracts over large companies from all over the country. This is certainly a great victory on the part of the local company. F. R. Salter also secured a part of the roofing contracts.

All the buildings are to be fitted with the most modern equipments and will be of fire-proof construction.

An Early Morning Blaze at Waldo Today.

Waldo, June 14.—[Special.]—Fire almost completely destroyed the residence of O. S. Anthony, in the west part of the town, about 8 o'clock this morning.

Men at work in a field nearby noticed a small blaze emitting from the roof and sent in an alarm. The Waldo fire company with hand-engines responded and with the assistance of the crowd which had gathered, managed to extinguish the blaze after considerable damage had been done. The fire is supposed to have been caused by a defective flue. The fire was not noticed by the family until after the fire laddies had been summoned.

The upper story and much of the first story were completely destroyed. The contents of the upstairs rooms were lost, but most of the first floor furniture was taken from the burning structure. The loss will amount to about $700, partially covered by insurance.

HIS MESSAGE TO CONGRESS

President Taft Urges Constitutional Change

MAKING POSSIBLE AN INCOME TAX

Also Asks Excise Tax on Corporation Profits.

The Latter Is Estimated To Bring in a Revenue of Twenty-Five Millions a Year and Open the Way to That Publicity That Will Help To Correct Corporate Abuses—Read This Afternoon.

Washington, June 16.—In a special message to congress this afternoon, President Taft recommended the adoption of a joint resolution by two-thirds of both houses proposing to the states an amendment to the constitution granting to the federal government the right to levy and collect an income tax.

He also recommended the enactment, as part of the pending tariff bill, an excise tax upon all corporations of two per cent. of their net incomes.

The message reads in part:

"It is the constitutional duty of the president from time to time to recommend to the consideration of congress such measures as he shall judge necessary and expedient. In my inaugural address, immediately preceding the present extraordinary session of congress, I invited attention to the necessity for a revision of a tariff at this session, and stated the principles upon which I thought the revision should be effected. I referred to the then rapidly increasing deficit, and pointed out the obligation on the part of the farmers of the tariff bill to arrange the duty so as to secure adequate income, and suggested that if it was not possible to do so by import duties, new kinds of taxation must be adopted, and among them, I recommended a graduated inheritance tax, as correct in principle, as certain and easy of collection. The house of representatives has adopted the suggestion, and has provided in the bill it passed, for the collection of such a tax. In the senate, the action of its finance committee and the course of the debate indicate that it may not agree to this provision and it is now proposed to make up the deficit by the imposition of a federal income tax in form and substance, almost exactly the same character of that which, in the case of Pollock vs. Farmers' Loan & Trust company, was held by the supreme court to be a direct tax, and therefore not within the power of the federal government to impose, unless apportioned among the several states, according to population.

"The decision of the supreme court in the income tax case, deprived the national government of the power, which by reason of previous decisions of the court, it was generally supposed that government had. It is undoubtedly a power the national government ought to have. It might be indispensable to the nation's life in great crises. Although I have not considered a constitutional amendment as necessary to the exercise of certain phases of this power, a mature consideration has satisfied me that an amendment is the only proper course for its establishment to its fullest extent. It is therefore recommended to the congress that both houses, by a two-thirds vote, shall propose an amendment to the constitution conferring the power to levy an income tax upon the national government, without apportionment among the states in proportion to population.

"It is said the difficulty and delay in securing the approval of three-fourths of the state will destroy all chance of adopting the amendment. But I have become convinced that a great majority of the people of this country are in favor of vesting the national government with power to levy an income tax, and that they will secure the adoption of the amendment in the state, if proposed to them.

"Second—The decision in the Pollock case left power in the national government to levy an excise tax which accomplished the same purpose as a corporation income tax, and is free from certain objections urged to the proposed income tax measure.

"I therefore recommend an amendment to the tariff bill, imposing upon all corporations the joint stock companies for profit, except national banks — otherwise taxed — savings banks, and building and loan associations, an excise tax measured by two per cent. on the net income of such corporations. This is an excise tax upon the privilege of doing business as an artificial entity and of freedom from a general partnership liability enjoyed by those who own the stock. I am informed that a two per cent. tax of this character would bring into the treasury of the United States not less than $25,000,000.

"The tax on net income is preferable to one proportionate to a percentage of the gross receipts, because it is a tax upon success and not failure. It imposes a burden at the source of the income at a time when the corporation is well able to pay, and when collection is easy.

"Another merit of this tax is the federal supervision which must be exercised in order to make the law effective over the annual accounts and business transactions of all corporations. While the faculty of assuming a corporate form has been of the utmost utility in the business world, it is also true that substantially all of the abuses and all of the evils which have aroused the public to the necessity of reform were made possible by the use of this very faculty. If now, by a perfectly legitimate and effective system of taxation, we are incidentally able to possess the government and the stockholders and the public of the knowledge of the real business transactions and the gains and the profits of every corporation in the country, we have made a long step toward that supervisory control of corporations which may prevent a further abuse of power."

After the message had been read to the senate, Senator Root, who was presiding, announced its reference to the finance committee. Then ensued a long preliminary wrangle over the question whether Senator Heyburn had the floor, or that Senator Gore, of Oklahoma, might present a motion relating to the message. Finally Gore was given the floor and moved that the finance committee be instructed to report by next Friday a joint resolution calling for a constitutional amendment on the income tax.

While this talk was going on, Senator Bailey said that he would insist on having the constitutional amendment provide for a graduated tax, and he predicted that he and his friends would give the opponents of income tax more than they bargained for.

Gore's motion was laid on the table by a vote of fifty-one to twenty-five, and the president's message now rests with the finance committee.

Lake Champlain's Monument.

The monument to commemorate the discovery of Lake Champlain by Samuel de Champlain is now spoken of as likely to be erected on Split Rock point, says a Burlington (Vt.) dispatch. The lake at that point is only about half a mile wide, but just to the north gradually broadens to its greatest width, fourteen miles. Those who favor the Split Rock site point out the fact that the monument, if erected there, would be in full view of all craft traversing the lake north or south and that a light placed at the top of the shaft would be visible for more than fifty miles in both directions.

A consular report calls attention to the fact that the exports of canaries from Germany to the United States were valued at $130,000 in 1908, as against $136,000 in 1907. It is estimated that there are now in this country fully 5,000,000 birds in cages.

THE GOLDEN RULE IN POLICE WORK

Chief Kohler, of Cleveland, Speaks with Enthusiasm.

Buffalo, N. Y., June 17.—In addressing the police convention, in session here, Fred Kohler, Cleveland's "Golden Rule" police chief, told of the operation of his theory. He said that during 1908 there had been a reduction in the number of arrests in Cleveland of 20,330 from the year before. He explained that the Cleveland police no longer desire to make arrests unless the case seems urgent and almost invariably refrain from arresting first offenders in minor offenses.

"We have done away entirely," said Kohler, "with the blackmailing, professional bondsmen, who have made money out of the unfortunates placed in prison before the proper inquiry into their cases. As I predicted, the shyster police court lawyers, the tricky politicians and the blackmailing bondsmen have been loud in their protests against the Golden Rule policy because it deprives them of their source of revenue and political following. But we are about free from them now."

TAX THE DIVIDENDS, DECLARES J. J. HILL

No Other Special Corporation Tax Is Feasible.

Washington, June 17.—"The only feasible plan for taxing the earnings of corporations is that of taxing the dividends."

This was the comment made by James J. Hill, the railroad magnate, concerning President Taft's plan to increase revenues by taxation of the income of the corporations.

"The taxing of dividends of corporations is the English method," said Hill, "and it should be taken as a model by this government, if a corporate tax is levied."

Hill expressed a hope that the revision of the tariff would be completed shortly so that business stability would be restored.

PRINCIPALS IN GOULD CASE AND GEORGE GOULD, WHO WILL TESTIFY

George Gould, who has been subpoenaed to testify in Mrs. Viola Katherine Gould's suit against her husband, Howard Gould, for separation, will be called by the plaintiff to testify as to the amount of Howard Gould's wealth. Before her marriage on October 6, 1898, Mrs. Gould was Katherine Clemmons, an actress. The chief points already brought out are that from the time of her marriage to Howard Gould down to the time when Mr. Gould left her in July, 1906, according to her own figures, her husband gave her $775,988, that she spent on an average $35,000 to $10,000 a year on dress and that after leaving her Howard Gould sent an emissary to her with three proposals for their future. One was that, although he had "placed his affections elsewhere," he would return to her if she would sign a paper consenting to relinquish the management of affairs at their home and cease annoying him and his friends. Failing in this being acceptable, a separation was the second alternative, or, if neither of these was attractive, then a divorce, "and if I didn't have a corespondent," Mrs. Gould said her husband sent word, "then he would give me one." All these proposals, she said, were rejected.

HE MAY PROVE HIMSELF SANE

Justice Mills Sets July 6 for a Hearing.

IN THAW HABEAS CORPUS PROCEEDING

Case May Be Taken to New York County.

It Is Possible That a Change of Venue May Be Granted and That the Matter May Not Be Tried at White Plains to Which Place It Is Transferred by Justice Mills. Thaw's Relatives in Court.

White Plains, N. Y., June 17.—Harry K. Thaw is to have an opportunity to prove himself sane. Supreme Court Justice Mills today set down the insanity hearing, following the application for a writ of habeas corpus, for July 6. It is possible that in the meantime, the place of trial will be changed, and the inquiry into the sanity of the slayer of Stanford White will take place in New York City.

When Thaw appeared before Justice Mills today to demand that he be given an opportunity to prove himself sane, Deputy State Attorney General Roger Clark moved for a change of venue, asking that the trial be sent to New York county. Judge Mills remarked that he had already denied a similar motion in former proceedings, and suggested that as the writ releasing Thaw from the asylum to appear in court had been granted by Supreme Court Justice Gaynor, of the Brooklyn appellate division, he would be the proper judge to pass on the motion for a change of venue. The application will therefore be brought before Judge Gaynor.

Should Judge Gaynor send the case back to White Plains, Thaw will undoubtedly be given a speedy trial, and it will be determined whether or not he is sane and should be freed from Matteawan.

Pending the determination of the matter of venue, Thaw was sent back to Matteawan by Judge Mills. Through the application of his counsel, Charles Morschauser, Thaw was granted several privileges during his confinement. He is allowed to remain up until 9 o'clock in the evening, instead of going to bed at 8 as the rules require. He is also allowed to confer with his lawyers daily between 10 o'clock in the morning and 6 in the evening.

A large number of friends of Thaw and his relatives were in court. A great crowd of curious persons, principally women, jammed the court-room to get a glimpse of Thaw.

DAYTON HONORS WRIGHTS TODAY

excursions were run from practically every town within a radius of fifty miles.

James Whitcomb Riley of Indianapolis was an early arrival and he put in the day mixing with the crowds and swapping yarns in the hotel lobbies.

The hotel registers show about thirty states represented by visitors.

The Dayton police are being assisted by a score of detectives from the principal cities in the Central West. All incoming trains and interurban crowds are being closely watched for crooks and confidence men. In addition the state militia is patrolling the downtown streets.

The Wrights, at the close of the brief ceremonies at Van Cleve park this morning, were driven to their home on the West Side where a family dinner was served.

Both Wilbur and Orville, during the ceremonies, maintained the same calm, impassive demeanor that has characterized them from the time they first came into fame. While the speakers lauded them to the skies, Wilbur kept his eyes glued on a tree across the street from the platform, while Orville toyed with a golden key to the city that had been presented to him at the opening of the exercises. However, their aged father, Bishop Milton Wright, appeared to be having the time of his life, smiling and bowing in all directions to his friends in the crowd. Lorin and Reuchlin Wright, brothers, also were in a lively mood. Miss Catherine Wright was not present.

Preparations are being made for an immense crowd Friday when the national, state and city medals will be presented the aviators at the fair grounds.

Remembered by Congress.

Washington, June 17.—Congress honored the Wrights in the following manner:

Resolved, That in recognition and appreciation of the great services of Orville Wright and Wilbur Wright of Ohio, rendered the science of aerial navigation in the invention of the Wright aeroplane, and for their ability, courage and success in navigating the air, the secretary of war be, and he hereby is authorized and directed to have struck and presented to Orville Wright and Wilbur Wright appropriate gold medals with suitable emblems, devices and inscriptions to be determined by him; and to enable the said secretary to carry this resolution into effect, an sufficient sum of money not to exceed $300 is hereby appropriated out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated—joint resolution of congress, introduced by Senator Foraker, passed by both houses, and signed by President Roosevelt, March 4, 1909.

Confers Degree on Brothers.

Richmond, Ind., June 17.—Earlham college, where Orville and Wilbur Wright, the aeroplanists, received their early education, Wednesday conferred upon the two brothers the degree of bachelors of science. The conferring of the degrees took place at the annual commencement exercises, but the Wright brothers were not present to receive the honors that were bestowed upon them, having written that they were too busy.

However, following the ceremonies, they were informed by mail that they can now use the insignia of "B. S." after their names.

tors who object to the assessment of taxes upon the net earnings of these small concerns.

Senator Cummins, who, with Bailey, is the joint author of the pending amendment for a direct income tax, does not admit that the fight has been lost, although admitting that the support given by President Taft has greatly strengthened the hands of Aldrich.

Can Spare Few.

"There are a few senators, I believe," said Cummins, "who will accept the president's recommendations as a party declaration. Although there are not very many who will vote with Aldrich on this ground, I am afraid we can not spare even a few.

"I do not imagine that Mr. Aldrich wants a tax on the incomes of corporations any more than he does an income tax, but I believe he did not wish to see the senate turn him down by a vote, and, therefore, adopted the corporation tax. I believe by some mysterious method he will do his best to defeat the corporation tax in conference. I do not think he is going to allow it ever to become a law if he can possibly prevent it.

"I think the tax on corporations is much more unjust than the income tax. It does not reach men with large incomes like Carnegie and Rockefeller, but falls with equal weight upon the large and small stockholder, which the income tax does not do. I think the proposed tax will become very unpopular in a few years.

"But if it should be enacted into law, we will have at least won something by our fight. I proposed the income tax because I thought that the tariff bill would not yield enough revenue and Mr. Aldrich insisted that I was wrong in my contention. Now he proposes to offer an amendment that will produce more revenue than the income tax would produce."

TALES TOLD OF MRS. GOULD

Servants in the Gould Castle Are Witnesses

AND TALK ABOUT KATHERINE'S SPREES

Capacity for Making Air Blue Was Marked.

She Swore More Freely Than Effectively to the Servants, Especially the Stable Forces, and Her Tongue Always Ran Wildest When She Was Drinking Freely. Got Drunk Every Other Day.

New York, June 17.—Contrary to expectations, Howard Gould did not take the stand to testify against his wife, Katherine Clemmons Gould, who is suing him for divorce and whose suit he is opposing.

There was a continuation, however, of servants' gossip, accounts by menials and neighbors of their former mistress' eccentricities, humiliating details, as sworn to on the stand, of Mrs. Gould's alleged fondness for alcoholic beverages, and her manner at such times when what the witnesses said was influence of liquor brought from her lips remarks that are ill-suited to a woman's tongue.

What Katherine Clemmons Gould heard was but a reiteration, and in some respects an amplification of former testimony, the basis of which was that at various and divers times at the vast Long Island show place, Castle Gould, she had, according to the witnesses, been intoxicated, had abused menials, given arbitrary and unreasonable commands to the servants, and had used rather severe language in altercations with her husband.

Tries to Drive Through Gate.

Coachman, gardener, chambermaid and other servants went on the stand and swore to the demeanor of the woman who used to give them orders. An occasion when she would have fallen from her carriage but for the protecting arm of a coachman, an attempt of her's to drive through a closed gate, a time when a footman saved her from falling when intoxicated, as he testified, were among the things alleged as Long Island rustic or former servant went on and passed from the witness stand. Mrs. Gould was greatly moved as she heard these declarations, and she has evinced her intention of fighting bitterly in rebuttal against them.

A carpenter, Herbert Trotter, was the last witness. He said when he was working in the servants' quarters Mrs. Gould rushed in at one time and swore at and abused the servants. "Her voice was shaky and incoherent, her hair disheveled, and she was very profane. She was decidedly drunk," said the witness.

"At another time she came into the stables while I was working there, and swore at the grooms, and was so drunk that every one could tell that she was drunk," he continued. "She tried to go up stairs to the harness room, but could not navigate the steps," he added, emphatically.

Swears at Menials.

Trotter said he was ordered to go to Blue Gap farm, the Gould place in Virginia. On several occasions during the first 10 days he was there, he testified, he saw her intoxicated and heard her swear a great deal at the workmen.

Trotter testified that Mrs. Gould was only "occasionally intoxicated" during her stay of 10 days at the Blue Gap farm, when he was there.

"How many times do you think she was intoxicated during that 10 days?" asked Mr. Shearn. "Every other day," was the reply.

Referring to a time when Trotter said Mrs Gould fell off a chair and lay on the floor helpless, Mr. Shearn said: "Didn't you put something in Mrs. Gould's coffee that night at Blue Gap farm?" "I certainly did not," replied the witness.

"Didn't you get Betty Foster, the colored girl in the kitchen, to put something in Mrs. Gould's coffee?" "No, I did not."

"Don't you recall that Mrs. Gould accused you of poisoning her at Blue Gap farm?" "I certainly do not."

Consul Solomon Berliner, of Tenerife, in reporting that the first sod of the Accra-Akwapim railway in the Gold Coast, West Africa, was cut on January 7, 1909, also points out what effect it will have in developing that country.

Mexico has not advanced in dairying so very greatly since the times when many an hacienda, owning hundreds of thousands of cattle, took its coffee without cream or milk and knew not the taste of butter.

Elmer Winter, who has just completed his first year's work at the Ohio Wesleyan university, at Delaware, has gone to Wyoming to spend the summer. Mr. Winter was accompanied on the trip by two fellow students at the university.

Miss Elizabeth King is in attendance at the annual commencement exercises of the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, this week. Miss King is a graduate of the institution.

Miss Lena Beem will graduate. Friday, from the university at Adrian, Michigan Miss Beem, accompanied by her brother, Perry Beem, who is a student in the same college, will arrive in Richwood in a few days to spend the summer with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Beem.

Duke's Remedy For Auto Speed Maniz.

The Duke of Northumberland at a conference on the motor question held at the Mansion House in London the other afternoon said he did not believe that the difficulties with motorists would ever be over, he until for certain offenses the penalty was enforced of confiscating the car for so many months His grace who did not wish to be too hard on the poor motorist, said "Let him come and see his car daily if he likes Let him shed a tear over it daily and see to its health as it should be seen to but don't let him use it for six months."

SNAPSHOTS OF THE SEATTLE EXPOSITION WHERE WEST'S WONDERS ARE ON VIEW

The success of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition from the first has far exceeded the most sanguine expectations of the people of the Pacific coast, and the big fair promises to eclipse anything ever held west of the Mississippi except the St. Louis fair Indeed, the promoters of the Seattle fair are not sure their show will not draw more people than did the Louisiana Purchase exposition. On the opening day of the Seattle exposition there were 89,500 persons on the grounds, and the attendance has steadily kept up. Excursion trains are daily pouring vast multitudes into Seattle, and as the summer advances and the farming contingent sees its way clear to take a holiday there is little doubt that the crowds will increase As the prosperity of the West is on the up grade and the prospect for crops is excellent, there is no reason why the Seattle show should not reap a harvest of dollars to the very day of its close. Those who have visited every big fair since the Philadelphia Centennial have nothing but praise for the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition. The mining exhibits far surpass anything of the kind ever assembled at a similar event. One of the accompanying photographs shows the Cascades, one of the chief wonders of the fair.

Rat Tails For Embroidery.

Nature's pleasant forms must be exhausted when gown makers begin to talk about rat tail embroidery. Yet such is the fad for the hour. Rat tails are having their day in soft wool gowns. They are embroidered in silk and twisted and turned in a way calculated to make the timid squirm. Then rat tails figure among Parisian novelties as one of the trimmings for hats that divide popularity with chickweed and pullets' wings. For the hat the tails are near enough to life to give the creeps. "Well," gasped one good, healthy, normal minded woman when she saw such a piece of headgear, "it makes me want to get out the trap and the cheese"

Consul Paul Lang, of Sherbrooke, states that the production of maple sugar in Canada has for a number of years past been less this year than the average. Three pounds of sugar to a tree is considered a good yield. Last year it was above this, while for the season just ended it was considerably below.

AIR AND SUNLIGHT ARE ONLY THINGS UNTAXED

Under the New Proposals Today in Germany.

SAME OLD STORY ABOUT TAX BURDEN

Every Fellow Wants the Heavy Load on the Other Fellow, and the Debate Is Waging with Great Bitterness—Revenue Must Be Raised To Meet Heavy Deficit.

Berlin, June 17.—The new tax proposals that are now being debated by the Reichstag have simply turned the nation giddy by reason of their radical and sweeping nature.

"Air and sunlight are about all that is to be left us free of taxation," declared a leading Liberal today, "if the government program goes through."

A deficit of $125,000,000 a year, created by the increase in naval armaments, must be provided for by special taxation, and as the usual subjects of taxation have about been exhausted to meet the regular expenditures, the additional burden tax is striking right and left at practically everything that has heretofore escaped.

The revised scheme of the government proposes new taxes on brandy, wine, beer, tobacco, gas, electricity, advertisements—whether they be in newspapers or in street placards—succession duties, fire insurance policies, stocks, increased land values, land transfers, coal output, export grain and milling. The finance committee of the Reichstag has still other proposals which it will lay before the body, including taxes on perfumeries and matches and an increase in the taxes on tea, coffee and the export duty on coal and coke.

The schedules are being debated all together, the Conservatives believing that this plan will increase the chances of the bill being adopted.

The Liberals and Radicals are violently opposing the program on the ground that most of the increased burden taxation will fall on the trades, to the exclusion of the agricultural classes.

The chief complaint of the Socialists is that the new scheme does not hit the rich as hard as it does the common people.

The debates are being bitterly waged and while it is probable that a sweeping bill will be adopted, the future political complexion of the Reichstag may undergo radical changes.

Bufford, pianist; Charles Conrad, captain of the degree team.

The new officers will be installed July 16.

Mrs. Rosina Straw, of St. Mary's street was given a pleasant surprise by about sixteen members of the Ladies of the Maccabees, Wednesday evening, on her return home from a visit at Upper Samdusky and Forest. A social hour was enjoyed and refreshments were served.

Mrs. Straw and her daughters, Eva Straw and Rosina Krause, will leave, next Wednesday, for St. Francis, Kansas, where they expect to make their future home.

ROY CUBBISON DIES WEDNESDAY MORNING

Succumbs to Wounds Inflicted by George Hamner.

MAN MAKES HARD BATTLE FOR LIFE

Mother Is with Him When Death Comes—Cubbison's Slayer Is in the Marion County Jail—Held To Answer to Charge To Be Placed Against Him—A Statement.

Roy Cubbison, aged twenty-four, lies in a precarious condition at the Central Emergency hospital as the result of being stabbed in the right side of the neck by George Hamner. A pocket-knife having a two-and-three-quarter-inch blade was used.

To the chance presence of Dr. James Wilson McMurray in the neighborhood and the hasty and thoughtful action of Walter Justus pitcher of the Lancaster ball team, Cubbison probably owes his life, should he recover. Hamner was arrested at once and lodged in a cell at the city prison.

Shortly after 11 o'clock Sunday morning, members of the Lancaster ball team were sitting in front of the Pilgrim Inn. Their attention was drawn to a man running south on Main street, toward the alley between the Fahey bank and the Strehtz clothing store. Attention was also attracted to a man suffering from a ghastly stab wound in front of the Colonial Billiard hall. Justus and other players rushed to the injured man's assistance and Dr. James Wilson McMurray, who was in the Dumble drug store, dashed across the street. Every possible temporary aid was given but the man bled profusely, the blood spurting out from the ugly gash with every throb of the victim's heart. Fred Lutz and A. E. Slagle, a former member of the police force, dashed after Hamner and caught him before he got far away. He was taken to the station.

It was some little time before the Hess & Markert ambulance which was called arrived. The injured man was removed to the Central Emergency hospital, where Dr. A. Rhu and Dr. J. B Taylor were summoned. As soon as possible, the flow of blood was stopped, but it is estimated the man lost half his supply of blood.

During the afternoon, he lost consciousness several times, but the lapses were of short duration each time

An examination showed that the jugular vein and important muscles of the neck were completely severed. The surgeons worked with the injured man practically all day and much of the night. The hemorrhages were frequently renewed by the breaking of stitches during the convulsions the patient suffered. The gash is three inches deep and equally as long.

The story of the trouble varies according to the witnesses. There are several tales as to the cause of the cutting The one that seems most creditable is that, Saturday evening, the trouble had its inception in a quarrel in the Bank saloon on north Main street. Hamner was talking to John McNally. The conversation was relative to a legal matter, according to the story of witnesses. Hamner asked McNally if he could force his employer to pay a week's wages, held back. McNally's opinion it seems, did not please Hamner and he remarked about it several times. Just how Cubbison got into the wrangle, is not known, except that the men had some words following this incident. They went out into an alley, but just what occurred is not known. Both men had been drinking and when they were searched after the trouble each had whisky on his person. When arrested Hamner was somewhat under the influence of the liquor. Sunday morning, about 9 o'clock or a little later, the men met again and renewed the quarrel. The cutting followed quickly.

George Cubbison, the father of the victim, was called here from Bellefontaine, Sunday evening.

Hamner is a young man given somewhat to drinking, but so far as the police know has never been in trouble before. In his cell, Sunday evening, he was very remorseful and expressed deep regret over the cutting and much anxiety as to the condition of his victim. He has been employed in the erecting room of the Huber company, but quit his place Saturday.

Cubbison is credited by the police with having been in trouble frequently.

Roy Cubbison Dies.

Roy Cubbison, aged twenty-four years and eight days, died Wednesday, and George Hamner, his confessed assailant, is in jail.

Cubbison died at the Central Emergency hospital, Wednesday at 4:30 a. m. as a result of knife wounds inflicted in his neck by an ordinary pocketknife in a fight with Hamner, on north Main street, Sunday morning at 11:15 o'clock.

Cubbison nearly died from the loss of blood before and after he had been removed to the hospital. The attending surgeons had difficulty in keeping the gaping wound closed. In the throes of a convulsion the stitches were some times severed and the hemorrhage became profuse. The surgeons and the nurses at the hospital made a valiant fight to save the injured man's life, but the odds were against them. Cubbison's jugular vein had been cut and the cartilages surrounding the windpipe, completely severed.

In the opinion of the doctors, Cubbison's recovery appeared impossible from the start, but the fact that he lived at all, apparently in defiance of his mortal wounds, gave them some little hope and they did everything in their power to save his life. He had lost so much blood that it was necessary to resort to the injection into his veins of a saline solution to keep up the circulation.

Monday morning, Cubbison became suddenly worse and it was then known that death was near. Before lapsing into unconsciousness, Tuesday night, Cubbison said goodby to his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. George Cubbison. His mother had been by his side from the time he entered the hospital until he died.

The dead man was over six feet in height and of rugged physique. He is survived by his parents, one brother, William, and one sister, Mrs. Ethel Tuttle.

George Hamner, Cubbison's slayer, came to Marion last fall from Prospect. He is the only son of his widowed mother, Mrs. Amanda Hedges, who lives on Franconia avenue. For a short time he was employed as a motorman on the local street railway system and later worked in the erecting room at the Huber Manufacturing company's plant. Captain Lincoln Bond, of the police department, has known him for years. He has the reputation of drinking occasionally and has been arrested two or three times for intoxication. Otherwise, he bears a good reputation.

The funeral was held at the Pleasant church Friday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock.

When informed that Cubbison had died, Hamner expressed deep remorse. "I did not intend to do that," he said. "I am sorry." He made the same comment in the city prison, Sunday, when told that Cubbison might die from his wounds. L. E. Myers has been engaged as his attorney.

Prosecuting Attorney Charles L. Justice obtained an antemortem statement from Cubbison at the hospital, Sunday. In that statement, Cubbison denied that he had been the cause of the trouble, which started over a "kidding match" in the Bank restaurant. Cubbison said that half an hour after the trouble in the restaurant he went out and was met by Hamner. "He came at me with a knife and struck at me," said Cubbison. "I threw up my left hand and he cut me there and then he struck at me again and it caught me in the neck."

Charge of First Degree Murder.

Abraham L. Bond, captain of police, swore to an affidavit filed in the mayor's court, Wednesday night, against George Hamner, now confined in the county jail and being held to answer for the killing of Roy Cubbison, who died, Wednesday morning.

The charge against Hamner is for murder in the first degree. The affidavit recites that, on or about June 13 of the present year, George Hamner did unlawfully, purposely and of deliberate and premeditated malice make an assault on Roy Cubbison, stabbing him with a pocket-knife, inflicting a fatal wound, unlawfully, purposely and of deliberate and premeditated malice to kill and murder.

RAILROAD.

Ansoni Petriso, an Italian employed on the Erie section gang, suffered a painful injury, Thursday about 9 o'clock. He was assisting some other foreigners in the work of removing old ties, and as one attempted to get a "bite" on one tie with a pick, Petriso stepped under the pick. The pick passed through the victim's left foot at the ball, making an ugly gash. The injured man was taken to the Dr. C. E. Sawyer sanatorium.

The Illinois Central railroad is now in complete control of the Central of Georgia line, following the transfer to the Illinois Central of $5,000,000 of the Central stock which was taken up during the panic of 1907 by E. H. Harriman. The acquisition of the Georgia line by the Central has been expected ever since the Harriman purchase. The taking over of the Central of Georgia gives the Illinois Central an outlet to the Atlantic seaboard at Savannah. The Central of Georgia also controls the ocean steamship company, operating a steamship line from Savannah to New York and Boston.

Evidence of Worth.

An evidence of the popularity of the instruments made by the Meredith Band Instrument company is found in the fact that the four leading players in the big band carried by Barnum & Bailey use horns of Marion manufacture. Many instrument makers give men in such positions instruments for advertising purposes, but this is against the policy of the local company and the use of the instruments speaks for itself.

The antique assertion that "figures won't lie" is a lying figure of speech.

ROSA FOSNAUGHT IS IN SERIOUS TROUBLE

Charged with Inhumanly Treating Her Babe.

WOMAN ARRESTED ON STREETS TUESDAY

It Is Alleged That She Ties Her Two-Year-Old Child in the House and Leaves It Alone All Day at Times. Humane Officer Makes the Arrest. Child Is Cared For.

Rosa Fosnaught was arrested by Humane Officer J. W. Ulsh, Tuesday morning, and locked up on a charge of inhumanly treating her two-year-old illegitimate child.

According to the girl's own mother, Mrs. Daniel Fosnaught, of Home street, the child has frequently been left alone all day and often late at night. She is alleged to have tied the baby so he could not get away. When Mrs. Daniel Fosnaught reported the case, Humane Officer Ulsh began an investigation without delay. He filed an affidavit against the mother charging her with torturing the babe. She was seen up town, Tuesday, and placed under arrest. In the office of Justice Charles H. Conley she pretended she was going to faint. "Oh, I am going to die," she gasped, and apparently collapsed.

The authorities had some difficulty in getting her to reveal the whereabouts of the boy, who is now in the custody of the Marion County Humane society.

Several weeks ago the child's mother was arrested for loitering and now has a suspended workhouse sentence hanging over.

Clarence Bells was arrested at Van Wert, Wednesday, by Humane Officer J. W. Ulsh, who charged him with failing to provide for the two-year-old son of Rose Fosnaught. The Fosnaught woman is now in jail charged with torturing the child by tying him in the house alone while she went away and remained hours at a time during the day and night.

A hearing was to have been held in probate court Thursday morning, but the case was postponed until 1:30 that afternoon.

Clasping her baby to her breast and sobbing piteously the Fosnaught girl pleaded to be allowed to keep her child, during the hearing, that afternoon. Neighbors testified that she was not a fit mother, that she was wild and wayward. The father, who had been given a suspended workhouse sentence of ninety days in the court of Justice Conley, was in the court-room. Beside him sat his bride of less than a year.

Probate Judge Spencer gave the child into the custody of the humane officer to find a suitable home with the understanding that if the mother became a good woman she should again have the child. As guardian of the tot, Humane Officer Ulsh will place the boy into the custody of the father, who must provide a suitable home.

Attorney J. H. Eymon, who represented the Marion County Humane society, will ask Justice Conley to give the Fosnaught girl a suspended workhouse sentence. She was arrested on a charge of torturing the little boy, but this she stoutly denies.

CLASS IS GRADUATED AT THE SANATORIUM

Nurses Finish Prescribed Course of Work.

CLASS COMPOSED OF FOUR YOUNG WOMEN

Graduates and Friends Hear Pleasing Address by Dr. E. H. Pratt, a Noted Physician and Surgeon—A Delightful Evening Is Concluded with Dancing at Huber Hall.

In response to invitations issued by the Ohio Sanitorium company a large number attended the tenth annual commencement of the training school for nurses at the local institution, the Dr. C. E. Sawyer sanatorium, Wednesday evening.

The expansive dining-hall had been extemporized into an auditorium, the seating capacity of which was taxed. It was an audience composed exclusively of friends of the graduates and friends of the sanatorium.

Festoons of old gold and green, the class colors, and flowers and palms formed the decorations. The graduate nurses sat in front, with Dr. E. H. Pratt, of Chicago, the speaker, and members of the faculty to their left. To their right the orchestra, partly screened, was stationed.

The program was opened at 8 o'clock with an overture by the orchestra. Rev. C. W. Hensel, pastor of the Calvary Evangelical church, invoked the divine blessing. Following another selection by the orchestra, Dr. J. W. Adair introduced Dr. Pratt, one of the most eminent physicians and surgeons of the country.

The speaker won the admiration and confidence of his audience, as he himself would say, in a jiffy. Fresh from Chicago he brought with him all the charm of personality and wealth of breezy humor typical of the true Chicagian. His style was breezy, he set the whole room to a breezeful tune. Dr. Pratt talked of vibrations—those that you can hear and feel and those outside the zone of human realization. He lost no time in attuning himself to his audience, and his hearers responded with laughter and applause.

There were no tears in Dr. Pratt's little address to the graduating class. He preached the gospel of laughter and song and good deeds. If one gets one good idea out of a book that book, he said, is a great book; and, so with a speech, if one can get one good idea out of it the speech must be great. Dr. Pratt advocated a life of high ideals and the lending of these high ideals to one another.

"Resurrection came out of death, spirituality out of sensuality," declared the speaker. "You take selfishness out of the world and there wouldn't be enough steam left to get breakfast! I love humanity. I love my profession. I love to do good. I love my friends. And who are my friends? They have nothing to do with relations, I'll tell you that right now. Nor have they anything to do with politics, with religion or the medical profession. I'll tell you who are my friends are—they are truth-seekers. They are the people who say, 'Thy will be done,' and not always looking out for themselves. Don't you know, I find 'em kind o' scarce."

Dr. Pratt is not a man to put on aire when delivering an address. But he charges the whole atmosphere about him with his western manner of life. He never hesitates to use slang if he needs the word to round out his thought, and his language is simple. There were no big medical words, which many physicians pronounce, but never attempt to spell, in the address of the noted Chicago physician.

"If most people could get God's ear they would buzz it pretty hard to tell him what their wants are and to do what they want to do instead of doing the way God wanted them to do," the speaker said. He then spoke of the audience as being friends of the sanatorium and friends of the graduates, and that he was going to give just a little family talk. Suddenly he declared:

"I love this man Sawyer," nodding pleasantly in the direction of Dr. C. E. Sawyer. "I've watched him a good many years. I've watched his evolution in the world. He's a truth-seeker." He touched upon Dr. Sawyer's illness some time ago and how it had taught him a lesson—the lesson of relaxation. The great nerve tension that had brought on the break down would no longer in the future be a part of Dr. Sawyer's daily routine, he said. His sickness had taught him better.

Dr. Pratt said that he used to fear for his Catholic patients in Chicago when the priests came to administer extreme unction. He thought they would surely die, but he learned better. He discovered that when the priest called his patient's thoughts to the great gulf of death the thoughts of that patient left his own misfortunes, his aches and his pains, and wandered to another world. In this state of mind, Dr. Pratt said there was some chance for health to come in and the patient receiving the extreme unction often gets well.

"The essence of all religion is identically the same," he said. "The sooner a patient gives up hope of living and forgets his own troubles and worries, the sooner he will get well. Elbert Hubbard says health is to be earned. And that's true.

"The great battleground of life is what are we going to retain in consciousness. It is not what is outside of us so much as what is inside of us."

The speaker gave his audience a few pschyological thoughts. He spoke of one's subconscious self and how one must still his consciousness. He spoke of the vibrations of the earth and the stars, of love and of God. Then turning to the graduate nurses, he said:

"I want to give you just a little information. I want to give you a nightcap, a bit of advice. Don't ever try to cure anybody. You can't do it. What can you do? The same power is inside of you that is outside of you; you can make yourself healthy. What cures darkness? Why, light. What cures cold? Why, heat. Well, just as light cures darkness and heat cures cold, so health cures sickness. Would you tackle it? I am pretty warm stuff, but I wouldn't. What works on the inside works on the outside.

"My thought changes just as my desire changes. Sick people worry because they are sick. Sickness is what they are thinking about. They are thinking of their own aches and pains and not of health. Think of health. We become like what we thing. Some people are hypnotized by sickness. Trust in a divine providence. We never stop to say 'Thank you' for the air we breath and the water we drink. We get so accustomed to having these things from God that we sometimes turn off the stopcock and stop the great inflow. There's hacking cough and colds and death. We're sick."

Dr. Pratt advised the nurses not to sympathize with their patients. Sympathy, he said, only adds to their rebellion to health. That's why, he said, doctors are the most Dr. Jekyl-and-Mr. Hyde type of men in this respect there are. He advocated kindness, not sympathy. The person suffering from a disordered body usuall suffers from a disordered mentality, either emotionally or otherwise.

"Keep your mind on the good you can do and not what you are going to get," continued the speaker, addressing the nurses, "There is only one master of death and that is life. There is only one master of the sick room and that is a nurse. The poor nurse, the untrained nurse, can undo all that the good doctor has ever done. Always have in mind that sickness is self-induced and make it your business to keep healthy yourself."

Dr. Pratt spoke of the moral contagions of life. "Fear kills more patients than the doctors," he said. "The afraid doctor will not succeed nor will the afraid patient get well. Master yourself. The world wants hope. You must study suggestion. If that has not been taught you here, you must have it in your post-graduate course. The queen of women are the nurses and we value them more than we do the doctors."

When the applause subsided, Dr. C. E. Sawyer presented the diplomas to the graduates: Portia Grace Fielder, Clara Hecker, Louise Elizabeth Thombs and Georgia Anna David. Dr. Sawyer began by saying that when he was a small boy he started to walk across a footlog over a chasm. "Look out, Charley, you will fall," cried one of his companions, and no sooner had the suggestion of falling reached his ears than he did fall. Then when he returned the same way another companion said, "Have no fear, Charley, you won't fall," and he walked across the footlog without difficulty.

"That is the kind of sympathy we have taught these nurses," said Dr. Sawyer. "Ten years ago the first nurses were graduated from this institution. Since then there have been thirty-six graduates and all of them have succeeded admirably."

"You are at the threshold of a new life," continued Dr. Sawyer, "Yesterday you were a part of us, you were depending on us for advice. Tomorrow you will leave us. Your best effort is demanded. I do not wish to discourage you, but your troubles are not half over, but by your training here they have been minimized, made easier to overcome, because you are able to reason and to think on a scientific basis."

The program was closed with a selection by the orchestra, after which dancing was enjoyed until a late hour in the Huber hall.

SALVATORE LIMA IS STILL WITHOUT BOND

His Former Friend Refuses To Come to His Relief.

REASON FOR INCREASE IN BOND OF ACCUSED

Further Black Hand Raids Are Expected in Ohio—Officers Working on Cases Disappear Without Giving Notice of Their Departure. Whereabouts Unknown.

Salvatore Lima, alleged to be the leader of the Black Hand gang of Ohio, whose bond was increased from $2,000 to $5,000 after the officers secured a number of weapons at his place, Saturday evening, is still a prisoner in the Lucas county jail. District Attorney Day ordered him to Toledo and the bond increased owing to developments in the case.

Antonio Cangiamilla, who supplied the first bond, refused to furnish the additional security. Cangiamilla stated that he believed Lima was innocent, but that his wife refused to sign the $5,000 bond. He said that Lima had offered to give him a bill of sale of all his property and $1,000 which he has in the bank to indemnify him for the bond.

District Attorney Day left Toledo, Wednesday afternoon, for Cleveland, where he intends remaining until June 28. He will hold a conference with the postoffice inspectors in a day or two to marshal all of the Black Hand evidence found. He expects to have the state's case in good shape by the time he returns to Toledo for the preliminary hearing.

Further Black Hand raids in Ohio are about to be made.

Rumors to this effect were rife at the federal building, in Columbus, Thursday.

Inspectors Oldfield, Hutches and Pate, who have been in Columbus assembling the evidence already secured pending the preliminary hearings in various parts of the state, left that city late Wednesday night.

Details concerning their whereabouts were scrupulously guarded today and no explanation of their absence was offered.

FRAMERS OF THE INCOME TAX MEASURE; SENATOR WHO AIDS BIPARTISAN COMPACT

The coalition of Republicans and Democrats will have a test of strength on June 18, when the Bailey-Cummins income tax measure will come before the senate. The advocates of the income tax agreed so readily on the nature of the proposed law that they feel sure that instead of losing they will gain strength by the time the final vote is taken. Senator Bailey, of Texas, promptly accepted the Cummins amendment making the income tax two instead of three per cent and thus won the pledge of support of all that wing of the Republican majority in the senate which favors a tariff revision downward. Senator Borah, of Idaho, also was instrumental in bringing about the coalition of the income tax advocates, and a test of its strength was shown when seven Republican senators voted for immediate consideration of the measure. They were Borah, Bourne, Bristow, Clapp, Cummins, La Follette and Piles. All of the Democrats, including McEnery and Foster, voted with the income tax leaders.

ARMOUR BUILDING IS A MODEL STRUCTURE

Said To Be the Finest Office Building Extant.

WINDOWS PROVIDE LIGHT BUT NO AIR

Eight Hundred in the Five-Story Fireproof Structure—Broad Aisles Only Mark the Divisions Between Departments and Even the Walls Are Glass Lined.

In the new $750,000 five-story fireproof office building which the Armours have put up in Chicago for their office force of 1,200 the latest ideas for such construction have been incorporated. Light being the most important single factor in office efficiency, the structure takes the shape of the letter E. On all the exposed sides there are windows, except for the outside of the short middle stroke, which holds the vaults. Each floor contains 140,000 square feet, yet the furthest distance of any desk from a window is forty feet.

The ceilings are about fifteen and one-half feet high Eight hundred tall windows break the walls, placed in sets of three every six feet on all four sides of the building. Partitions have been eliminated as far as possible. Broad aisles alone make the divisions between departments.

Even the private offices are glass walled down to a foot wainscoting, and at that, says System, private offices are only for a few executive heads who have many conferences or confidential work. As a rule one consultation room for confidential business serves the needs of several department heads.

Fifteen hundred electric glower lamps set close to the ceiling nine feet apart and controlled in groups from several switchboards set into the walls on each floor at convenient locations furnish the artificial light. This arrangement was carefully studied. Four ninety candle-power lamps are spaced equi distantly in each bay. The lamps are twelve feet above the desks and provide an *abundance of light. At each switch*board a meter shows the current used in each group.

Windows here have but one purpose They let in the light. None is opened for ventilation. Except for the middle window of each set they are double sashed and immovable. A complete system of tile ducts in the walls carries fresh air to the rooms through registers in the walls near the ceiling and leads away the foul air through similar openings near the floor.

Fresh filtered air is pumped into the distributing system of ducts by a fan in the basement. The air is drawn through a bank of pipes through which cold water or steam is sent, depending upon whether cool or warm air is necessary. This purifies the air and heats it in winter—cools it in summer. Another big fan on the roof draws out the foul air

Automatic thermostats hold the winter temperature constant at any desired point In summer the air is never kept more than six degrees cooler than the outside temperature. A great difference in thermometer readings is conducive of colds.

The building is like a small town in itself with its restaurant, barber shop, soda fountain, smoking rooms, rest rooms and apparel lockers.

If a man believes all a woman says—but of course he doesn't, so that settles it.

It's better to mend your ways before you go broke.

MALAYAN BULLFIGHT AN ORIENTAL HOLIDAY

The Beaten Beast Is Butchered for Spectators.

SUCH EXHIBITIONS WEEKLY AFFAIRS

Sometimes the Attendance at the Bullfights Reaches 10,000—How Animals Spar with Their Horns. A Sickening, Cruel Battle in Which People Take a Great Interest.

Last Sunday I witnessed a buffalo fight for the first time in my life. It was at Batu Baker, in Kedah, where such exhibitions are a matter of weekly occurrence. The animals fought in an enclosure about 100 feet square and surrounded on every side by raised platforms for those of the spectators who care to pay for their sport.

Thousands of others packed themselves close in the arena itself—perilously close it seemed to me—and witnessed the fight without payment. These swayed this way and that with the progress of the fight. Sometimes, I am told, the spectators number as many as 10,000; on this occasion there were between 6,000 and 7,000 present.

Business began in earnest as soon as the combatants were loosed. Their heads came together with a thud, they separated, came together again and pushed and strained for an advantage. In all this wild pushing and straining one saw that the combatants were maneuvering to bring their horns into play. Again their heads came together, and this time the favorite worked one of his horns until the tip of it was well under his opponent's neck.

With a sudden jerk upward he lifted the other buffalo clean off his forefeet Slowly he turned around almost a complete circle, his opponent meanwhile being impaled on one of his horns. Then his neck muscles relaxed and the other buffalo's forefeet found ground again.

At once the wounded animal snatched himself out of danger and managed to gore the favorite in the eye Maddened with pain and rage, the favorite bore down his opponent with the sheer fury of his attack. The fight had lasted fifteen minutes.

He flees only to die. The owner of the victorious buffalo slaughters him, cuts him up, distributes the meat among his friends and sends the entrails, the muzzle, the tail and other parts of the animal to his previous owner A quaint custom is observed. The owner of the loser fires off a gun as soon as he receives his "present," as an intimation that he will get another buffalo within the year to match the victor. The penalty, should he not fulfill his words, is $100, a like sum being handed over to him should the bull he challenged not be forthcoming to meet his new competitor.—Strait's Echo.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Emma Bondley Reidenbaugh was born May 10, 1876. She died Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, May 12, 1909, aged thirty-three years and two days. For some time her health had been delicate, but she was always so cheerful and hopeful that it inspired hope in the hearts of her friends. When the end came it was a shock to most of those who knew and loved her. From childhood she was of a religious turn of mind. She loved the Sabbath-school, and was a constant attendant as far as strength and opportunity permitted. She joined the Presbyterian church at Prospect December 31, 1905. She loved sacred song. The last time she visited at her father's home, she played and sang several of her favorite pieces, among then "Jesus Paid It All." The hymn book stood open to this beautiful hymn, just as she left it on the piano until after her death. This with others of her favorites were sung by a quartet at her funeral. When nearing her end she spoke of having made her peace with God. She urged loved ones left behind to meet her in the better world. Freed from the frailties and sufferings of this present life, we doubt not she is with Christ whom she loved, waiting to welcome the loved ones she has left behind. A devoted husband, a father and mother and two brothers, besides many more remote friends and relatives are living. The funeral was held, the afternoon of May 14, 1909, in the Presbyterian church, the house being crowded by a large and sympathetic audience. The service was conducted by her pastor, Rev. C. M. Chipm who spoke from Psalm 116 15 "Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints." He was assisted by Rev. W. E. Hucker edi. of the Reformed church.

GEORGE THOMPSON IS BEFORE MAYOR SCHERFF

Answers to Charge of Violation of the Liquor Laws.

JUDGMENT OF GUILTY RENDERED BY MAYOR

Thompson Is Fined Fifty Dollars and Costs—Execution of Judgment Is Suspended Pending the Filing of a Bill of Exceptions—Notes Picked Up in Police Court.

The trial of George Thompson, on a charge of keeping a place where intoxicating liquors are sold, furnished and given away, was held in the mayor's court, Wednesday afternoon. Thompson is engaged in the draying and storage business, and in a search made at his barn by the officers, last week, a keg of whisky was found.

The prosecution was represented by City Solicitor Boyd and Attorney J. Thompson while Attorney L. E. Meyers represented the defendant. Two witnesses were called by the prosecution and two for the defense. The attorney for the defendant endeavored to prove that Thompson had rented a portion of the barn for storage purposes and had no knowledge of the whisky in the barn. After considering the evidence, the mayor rendered a verdict of guilty and fined Thompson $50 and the costs in the case. The attorney for the defendant made a motion for a new trial which was overruled. Execution of judgment was suspended pending the filing of a bill of exceptions for carrying the case to the higher court.

Ralph Parlette had a search warrant issued from the mayor's court, late Wednesday afternoon, for the place of Herman Kalkbrenner, on west Center street, known as Hotel Nordica. Through a source of information, Parlette was led to think that intoxicants were being sold in the place. To guard against criticism, Parlette was requested to accompany the officers and assist in the search. The chief, captain and Officers Cusic, Wilhelm and Frame searched the place and together with Parlette tasted the beverages that might be intoxicating. They were all satisfied that there was nothing in the place of an intoxicating character. Parlette stated that in the future he would know to his own satisfaction before he swore to a warrant of the kind.

The local police received a telephone communication from Bucyrus, at an early hour Thursday morning, stating that two prisoners named Roberts and Myers escaped from the jail at that place, about 10 o'clock Wednesday night. Roberts is described as being twenty-seven years of age, of fair complexion, about five feet, eight and a half inches tall and weighing about 175 pounds. Myers, who is twenty-five years old, is of dark complexion, and is nearly as tall as his companion.

Chief Trautman and a deputy came down from Bucyrus in an automobile, at noon Thursday, and met two bloodhounds and their owner, from Dayton, with a view to running down the two prisoners who escaped jail at Bucyrus Wednesday night. The hounds were taken north of Marion to where it is believed the men are in hiding.

On a warrant charging them with disturbing a public gathering, Samuel, Carry and Amel Thornton were given a hearing in the mayor's court, Thursday. At the Bethel M. E. church, a lawn social was held, last Saturday evening, and during the progress of the entertainment, Shirley Judy became involved with Carry Thornton, to whom he was paying some attention. The father and brother of the girl took a hand in the trouble and a general rough house followed Nelson Young filed an affidavit against the quartet. When arraigned before the mayor, Judy pleaded guilty to the charge against him, but sentence was reserved. The Thorntons were given a hearing and as there was no evidence to show that they were the aggressors in the trouble, they were dismissed. All of the parties are colored.

MINORITY WILL PUT UP FIGHT

Democratic Senators Scheme to Thwart Aldrich.

NOT HOSTILE TO TAFT'S PLAN

See Design In Administration Movement For Tax on Corporation Dividends to Sidetrack Income Tax Amendment and Will Exhaust Diplomacy to Force Direct Vote on Proposition—Wickersham Presents Draft of Measure to Committee.

Washington, June 18.—At a caucus of the Democratic senators it was decided that the minority shall stand by their previous declaration in favor of the enactment of an income tax law at the present session. The caucus was well attended. There were speeches by Senators Bailey, Shively, Culberson, Money and Rayner, and brief remarks by a number of others, in which the opinion was expressed that the administration movement in favor of placing a tax on net earnings of corporations is designed to prevent the income tax amendment from reaching a direct vote.

All of these senators did not denounce the plan of President Taft for the taxing of corporations. Many Democrats believe in that plan, but they are opposed to the sidetracking of the income tax issue.

Cloakroom Gossip.

Previously to the caucus there was a discussion of the president's program in the Democratic cloak room. It was suggested that Senator Bailey might withdraw his amendment until after Senator Aldrich presents the amendment for a tax on the earnings of corporations. The purpose of that move would be to avoid the president's plan being offered as a substitute for the income tax amendment. The Bailey amendment then could be offered after the corporation tax amendment was before the senate, and only a motion to table or refer to a committee could displace it. Thus a direct vote on the amendment, it was argued, could not be prevented

Attorney General Wickersham presented to Senator Aldrich the draft of the amendment which President Taft desires to have adopted, placing a tax on the net earnings of corporations This draft was submitted to the Republican members of the finance committee, but no action was taken regarding it. It was not made public, and members of the committee declined to discuss its provisions.

OPENS PULP DEBATE

Brown Shows Advantage Held by Yankee Paper Makers.

Washington, June 18.—The battle to place wood pulp and print paper on the free list was opened up in the senate under the leadership of Senator Brown of Nebraska. Going over to the portion of the chamber in which Senators Aldrich, Hale, Frye, Lodge, Gallinger, Smoot and other leaders have their seats, the Nebraskan stood in the midst of the opposing force and, with good nature, bandied thrusts that came to him from all quarters as he delivered a telling speech in behalf of the cause he had espoused.

Showing familiarity with all available information on the wood pulp and paper schedule, Mr. Brown frequently quoted from various authorities to sustain his contention that wood pulp and print paper are both produced in the United States with cheaper labor and cheaper materials, resulting in cheaper product, than can be obtained in the Dominion of Canada. Citing rates of wages in this country and Canada, he undertook to show that the United States had an advantage in that respect. Turning to his Republican colleagues, he asked them how, in view of the fact, they could justify a duty on these products for the "protection of labor."

Without divulging the source of their information in any definite manner, Senators Aldrich and Hale flatly contradicted these statements in reference to wages and cost of production. They insisted that the Mann committee of the house of representatives, from which Mr. Brown quoted, was lacking in accurate testimony, and contended that, even accepting that report, it could not be maintained that the United States had an advantage in the production.

Inspector Oldfield Makes Raid on Cincinnati Saloon.

EVEN DOZEN SUSPECTS TAKEN

Two Are Held as Alleged Participants In Conspiracy to Extort Large Sum of Money From John Amicon of Columbus—Incriminating Letters and Large Assortment of Weapons, Including Bloody Stiletto, Among Fruits of the Arrests.

Cincinnati, O., June 18.—Continuing their search for members of the Black Hand band that has been operating in Ohio and adjoining states, postoffice inspectors, assisted by city detectives, made a spectacular raid on a saloon in Sixth street in which a patrol wagon full of Italians was rounded up and hauled before Federal Commissioner Adler.

Two of the dozen men arrested, Vicenzo Arrego, a fruit dealer, and Frank Spadero, a saloon keeper, were held on warrants charging conspiracy in connection with an alleged attempt to extort money from John Amicon of Columbus, O., by Black Hand methods. The remaining 10 were allowed to go, though it is said some of them are to be kept under surveillance and will be called as witnesses.

Obtain Valuable Information.

Inspector Oldfield, who led the raid which resulted in the arrests, said that proof has been obtained that Spadero, up to three weeks ago, was the local president of the Society of the Banana, since succeeded by Salvatore Lima.

In the raid a large amount of literature was captured which the inspectors declare has an important bearing on the cases of the Black Hand suspects recently arrested at Marion, Columbus and other Ohio points.

The arrests were made in Spadero's saloon, and in addition to the alleged incriminating literature, stilettos, daggers, revolvers and other weapons were found. A stiletto taken from one of the men arrested contained blood that had dried upon the blade of the ugly-looking instrument.

Male members of the company have been paying court to some of Fairfield's girls, against the protest of certain 'gallants." As a result Pinnick was assaulted by several young men and badly beaten up. Later in a dark spot three men attacked young Pinnick. Three pistol shots rang out and Dr. Leininger fell dead. Pinnick telephoned to the sheriff to come and arrest him.

An hour later they witnessed a pyrotechnical display on the Miami river, in which their own portraits, 80 feet high and entwined in an American flag, were shown.

When the fireworks were over, Wilbur turned to Orville and said: "Let's hurry home; you know we have to get up early."

A CLASS OF TWELVE ENDS SCHOOL WORK

St. Mary's Parochial School Holds Commencement.

A SACRED CONCERT AND FINE ADDRESS

A Departure Made from the Lines Followed in the Past—Rev. Father Crowley Talks to the Graduates and Offers Some Thoughts of Value—Exercises at Church.

A class of twelve young people having completed the course of study in St. Mary's parochial school, was graduated at the annual commencement exercises held in St. Mary's Catholic church, Thursday evening. The handsome edifice was well filled. Admission was on invitation.

The commencement varied in form from those of the past in which the graduates contributed essays and orations. The evening was given to a sacred concert and an address.

The class, which is the largest ever graduated from the school, was composed of Misses Genevieve T. Darmody, Marguerite Hanley, Edith Ochs, Margaret C. Molloy, Marguerite E. Kelly, M. Frances Kirchner, Anna M. Molloy, Katherine C. Murphy, Margaret L. O'Connell, Margaret C. Werley and Mr. John T. Von Kaenel, of the scientific department, and Miss Mary C. Lawrence, of the commercial department. The church was beautiful in its appointments and special decorations. The young women were handsomely gowned and the picture presented was attractive in the extreme.

The program was opened with a song "Come to the Gay Feast of Song," by a chorus of forty voices, which included the graduates, the accompaniment being played by an orchestra of nine pieces and piano. Miss Nona Kelly presided at the piano throughout the evening A baritone solo, "The Light of the World" was rendered in a pleasing manner by Mr. Harvey Martin.

The address to the graduated was delivered by Rev. Father T. Crowley, a dominican and teacher in St. Patrick's college, in Columbus. He selected for the subject of his address "Joan of Arc," and from the story of the girl drew some splendid examples for the members of the class.

The reverend gentleman said in part: In the study of this world we are charmed by heroic men and women, and especially so by the latter sex, as it is conceded to be the weaker Heroic deeds were performed by Marie Antoinette and Mary Queen of Scotts, but Joan of Arc especially appeals to us as a personage of heroism After she had fulfilled her mission on earth, instead of being rewarded she met an ignominious death. While still a girl Joan of Arc became affected by the woes of her country, much of which had been conquered by the English and their allies, leaving only a small portion to the French king. She secured permission from the king, after proving her sincerity, to hasten with Dunois to the deliverance of Orleans. She declared that she had been commanded to take a part to liberate France and aid Charles by voices from the heavens. In male attire and fully armed she bore the sword and the sacred banner at the head of the army and her campaign resulted in the English abandoning Orleans. Other successes followed and when she asked to return home, she was requested by King Charles to remain with the army. In a siege by the Burgundians about Compiegne she was taken prisoner and delivered to the English. After a mock trial at Rouen, accompanied by many shameful circumstances, she was condemned to death. Her submission to the church resulted in her punishment being commuted to perpetual imprisonment. Soon after she was treated as a relapsed criminal and burned, but she died with undaunted fortitude.

Rev. Father Crowley reviewed the wonderful victories of Joan of Arc at the age of seventeen and spoke of what the members of the graduating class might be capable of doing He said, that as Joan of Arc had heard voices coming from heaven telling her to be faithful to the sacraments and St Michael, St Margaret and St. Catherine appeared in vision and told her what her mission was, so should the visions of the parents and teachers rise to the graduates and they should be faithful to their teachings.

"Let us not exaggerate the difficulties that rise at our feet As you graduates have been successful in the past, so may you be in the future. May you live lives faithful and in the way you have been taught. Think of what your teachers have done and how they have given the best days of their lives to make you fit representatives of Catholic teaching,", was the closing thought offered the graduates

"Hail Alma Mater" a song by the chorus with orchestra accompaniment, was followed by the presentation of medals and diplomas by Rev. Father Joseph Denning. The class honors for the graduates of the scientific department were awarded Miss Edith Ochs, who received a gold medal. Miss Mary C. Lawrence received the medal of the commercial department, being the only graduate in this branch. Miss Mary Griffin received a gold medal for the best essay. A number of the pupils of the school were presented handsome books for not having missed a day during the school year, while about thirty-five pupils received certificates for penmanship from the Palmer school, of Chicago, this being considered a high honor.

Following the presentation of the diplomas, Miss Leona Gurley rendered a beautiful vocal solo with piano accompaniment The benediction by Rev. Father T Crowley followed, during which Mrs. C. Breen rendered a solo in excellent voice and the double male quartet sang "Tantum Ergo." The program was concluded with a song "Sing Praises Unto the Lord" by the chorus and a selection by the orchestra.

One of the highest honors which could be bestowed on the class and school was made known to them at the close of the exercises. A letter to Rev. Father Denning from W. O. Thompson, of the Ohio State university, was read, saying that on a report to the faculty of the college from the visiting board which recently visited the local school, the graduates of the St. Mary's school are enabled to enter the university without taking a preliminary examination. This is an honor bestowed on a comparatively small number of schools of the state. The visiting committee reported that the local school was far in advance of the majority of schools of the state.

DUTY OF CHEERFULNESS.

It is the duty of everyone to be cheerful. Cheerfulness helps its possessor and helps those about him. It is worth more than wealth and even more than health. A cheerful invalid is more likely to recover than a lugubrious one, and sets a useful lesson to those about him. Illustrating the superiority of intellect over material things and substantiating the important truth that

The mind is its own place, and in itself
Can make a heaven of hell, a hell of heaven.

It is a sad thing to be a cripple, but it is a sadder thing to be a gloomy cripple than a cheerful one. When Samuel Foote lost a leg he comforted himself with the reflection that he would have fifty per cent. immunity from corns, and declared that he would not change his one good leg for Lord Spindleshank's two drumsticks. He also observed that though he might find himself a little awkward at running, he would engage to hop with any man in England.

That is the spirit in which to face a reverse of fate, and it is a spirit which can be cultivated. It was cultivated by Sir Walter Scott when, ill from overwork, the failure of his publishers made him a bankrupt. He deliberately put aside the blues, and cheerfully set to work with his pen to forget his physical discomforts, retrieve his fortunes and protect his creditors. The victory which he achieved was in its way as memorable as that of Wellington at Waterloo, and never can be too frequently recalled, for it serves as a reminder that the will of man when cheerfully exerted is indomitable against the strokes of adverse fate.—Milwaukee Evening Wisconsin.

JOHN SIMPSON DIES EARLY THIS MORNING

Death Is the Result of a Sudden Illness.

THE ATTACK COMES WITHOUT WARNING

Mr. Simpson Is a Resident of Marion and Marion County His Entire Life—Is an Invalid Since 1882. Never Recovers from Shock of His Wife's Death Two Years Ago.

John W. Simpson, one of the best-known residents of the city, died suddenly at his home, No. 228 south Prospect street, this morning at 6:30 o'clock. He had been an invalid since 1882. Death was due to a complication of diseases.

Mr. Simpson was born in Marion county, February 24, 1840. He was the son of Isaiah Simpson, pioneer resident of the county, and until incapacitated for labor by inflammatory rheumatism, lived on a farm. His invalidism was due to rheumatism, and although everything known to medical science had been done for him his physical condition was little improved. With some assistance he was able to get about in his buggy.

Mrs. Simpson, who was Miss Coffy, a daughter of James Coffy, one of the wealthy residents of the county, died about two years ago. The shock of her death was so great that he never fully recovered from it.

Several months ago, Mr. Simpson suffered a severe attack of stomach trouble and it was feared at that time he could not survive. Doctors were unable to determine just what was the cause of his sickness. A recurrence of the same sudden illness caused his death

LEST WE FORGET.

Rules for remembering which go beyond the obvious advantages comprised in distinctness of the original impression and observing the connection between related idea are not of much practical value. Mnemonics may easily be made ridiculous. It is a German wit who makes a professor remark, "Would you believe it, my dear colleague, I actually do not know the ages of my children?" To which the other makes answer, "Such a thing could never happen to me. I was born 2,300 years after Socrates; my wife 1,800 years after the death of Tiberius; our son Leo 2,000 years after the promulgation of the Licinian laws by Tiberius Semronius Gracchus, and our Amanda 1,500 years after the commencement of the great migration. Very simple, is it not?"

It is the common experience that memory is a merry trickster, treacherous and wanton, refusing to yield up the things we have stored in our minds with great care, yet lavish in affording us the most vivid images of trivial incidents in our lives. The late Thomas Bailly Aldrich set this forth with much metrical grace:

My mind lets go a thousand things,
Like dates of wars and deaths of kings,
And yet recalls the very hour—
'Twas noon by yonder village tower,
And on the last blue moon in May—
The wind came briskly up the way,
Crisping the brook beside the road;
Then, pausing here, set down its load
Of pine-scents, and shook listlessly
Two petals from that wild-rose tree.
